Biographical Information

Zbigniew K. Brzezinski

Zbigniew K. Brzezinski was born on March 28, 1928 in Warsaw, Poland. He attended McGill University in 1950. In 1953, Brzezinski immigrated to the United States and earned his PhD from Harvard University. From 1953-1956, he was an Instructor of Government and research fellow at the Russian Research Center at Harvard. He authored The Permanent Purge: Politics in Soviet Totalitarianism in 1956. From 1956-1960, Brzezinski was an Assistant Professor of Government and Research Associate, Russian Research Center and Center of International Affairs at Harvard. In 1960, he authored The Soviet Bloc: Unity and Conflict followed by Ideology and Power in the Soviet Union in 1962, Alternative to Partition in 1965, Between Two Ages: America in the Technetronic Era in 1970, and The Fragile Blossom: Crisis and Change in Japan in 1972. From 1960-1977, Brzezinski worked at Columbia University as an Associate Professor and Professor of Public Law and Government and the Director of the Research Institute on International Change.

Among political scientists, Brzezinski was an early supporter of the concept of Trilateralism as an important aspect for progress in advanced and developing countries. From 1973-1976, Brzezinski served as Director of the Trilateral Commission, a private organization founded to promote closer cooperation among North America, Western Europe and Japan. As director, Brzezinski supervised the work of the various Task Forces founded by the Commission; worked with regional chairmen to identify and invite relevant participants and experts from each region to join the Commission; and directed the publicity campaign for the Commission, especially in Europe and Japan. He presided over the Executive Committee meetings and coordinated the first full Commission meeting in Kyoto, Japan in May 1975.

Concurrent with directing the Trilateral Commission, Brzezinski continued his association with the Council on Foreign Relations, Freedom House and Amnesty International; published articles in Foreign Policy, Journal of International Affairs, and Studies in Comparative Communism. He participated in several conferences and lectures at various organizations and college campuses and appeared before the Congressional Commission on the Organization for the Conduct of Foreign Policy and before Governor Nelson Rockefeller's Committee on Critical Choices. By 1975, Brzezinski had returned to his teaching career at Columbia University and reduced his work at the Trilateral Commission to part-time.

In December 1976, President-elect Jimmy Carter, who met Brzezinski while a member of the Trilateral Commission, chose him to be his Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs (APNSA). Brzezinski served in this position until the end of the Carter Administration in 1981 and was instrumental to the President throughout the four years of service as an advisor on all international relations issues. In 1981, Brzezinski returned to Columbia University as a Professor within the School of Government. He continued to author books during his post-White House career including his memoir, Power and Principle: Memoirs of the National Security Adviser 1977-1981, in 1983.

David Aaron

David Laurence Aaron was August 21, 1938, in Chicago. He is an American diplomat, and international expert and writer who served in the Jimmy Carter administration. He graduated from Occidental College with a BA and from Princeton University with an MPA. He later received an honorary Ph.D from Occidental College.

Aaron entered the U.S. Foreign Service in 1962, where he served as a political and economic officer in Guayaquil, Ecuador. In 1964 he was assigned to the NATO desk at the Department of State. He subsequently served as a political officer to NATO where he worked on the Nuclear Planning Group and on the Non Proliferation Treaty. He then joined the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency where he served as a member of the U.S. Delegation to the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT, during which Aaron was a key negotiator of an agreement with the Soviet Union to reduce the risk of nuclear weapon accidents.

He was then recruited to serve on Henry Kissinger's National Security Council staff during the Nixon administration, from 1972 to 1974. During that time, Aaron drafted NSSM 242 on Nuclear Strategy, which came to be known as the Schlessenger Doctrine. In 1974, on the recommendation of Zbigniew Brzezinski, Aaron became Senator Walter Mondale's legislative assistant. The following year, Aaron was task force leader of the Senate's Select Committee on Intelligence. He was the principal architect of the Committee's recommendations. Aaron would later follow Mondale to the Jimmy Carter Presidential campaign.

In 1977, Aaron was asked by Zbigniew Brzezinski, who had been appointed the National Security Advisor, to become Deputy National Security Advisor in the administration of Jimmy Carter. Aaron was one of several former Kissinger aides appointed by Jimmy Carter to foreign policy and defense positions.

William Odom

William Eldridge Odom was born June 23, 1932 – May 30, 2008. He was a retired U.S. Army 3-star general and former Director of the NSA under President Ronald Reagan, which culminated a 31-year career in military intelligence, mainly specializing in matters relating to the Soviet Union. He became prominent with his Political Order in Changing Societies (1968), a work that challenged the conventional view of modernization theorists, that economic and social progress would produce stable democracies in recently decolonized countries. As a consultant to the U.S. Department of State, and in an influential 1968 article in Foreign Affairs, he advocated the concentration of the rural population of South Vietnam as a means of isolating the Viet Cong. He also was co-author of The Crisis of Democracy: On the Governability of Democracies, a report issued by the Trilateral Commission in 1976. During 1977 and 1978, in the administration of Jimmy Carter, he was the White House Coordinator of Security Planning for the National Security Council.
