NOVEMBER AT THE CARTER LIBRARY

AUTHORS, STORYTELLERS AND THE EDUCATION OF THE PRESIDENTS

Atlanta, GA.- Join us at the Carter Presidential Library for an exciting November with authors, book signings, storytellers and an exhibit on Presidents that the whole family will enjoy.

On Monday, November 17th at 7pm, Newsweek editor Jon Meacham discusses and signs his new book, American Lion, Andrew Jackson in the White House.

On Wednesday, November 19th at 7pm, Nobel Peace Prize nominee Father John Dear reads from his autobiography A Persistent Peace. Both readings and book signings are in the Carter Library theater and are open to the public at no charge.

Celebrate Thanksgiving weekend with the return of the Southern Order of Storytellers. Four of the region's best storytellers will present "Turkeys, Pilgrims and Indian Corn: Thanksgiving Stories to Relish" at 2pm on Friday, November 28th. The performance is free with the purchase of admission to the Carter Presidential Museum.

While you are there, don't miss seeing "Schoolhouse to White House: The Education of the Presidents." Tracing the education of presidents Herbert Hoover to George W. Bush, this exhibit show class photos, school essays, report cards and much more. It is an exhibit the whole family will enjoy.
