Ted Turner at the Carter Library Wednesday

Discusses his Life & His New Book "Call Me Ted"

Atlanta, GA. - CNN founder Ted Turner comes to the Jimmy Carter Presidential Library this Wednesday, December 10th at 7:00pm. Turner will discuss his life and his new book "Call Me Ted" at this special, free event. Doors to the Carter Center's Ivan Allen Pavilion open at 6:00pm. Seating is first come-first seated. Members of "Friends of the Carter Library" can request reserved, front-section seats by calling 404-865-7109 by noon on December 10th.

Because of time limitations, Turner has pre-signed copies of his book and they will be for sale by A Cappella Books, a co-sponsor of the event. Turner will not be signing books or personalizing copies at the event.

Also, because of scheduling problems, the Friday, December 19th talk by Craig Walzer, editor of Out of Exile: Narratives from the Abducted and Displaced People of Sudan (Voice of Witness) has been postponed. It will be re-scheduled.
