Touch a Moon Rock

NASA Comes to the Carter Library

Atlanta, GA.- Hold a Moon Rock in your hand.....join an adventure into space as NASA and the Carter Presidential Library present NASA's Johanna Pineiro on Wednesday, May 4th at 7pm in the Carter Museum theater. Pineiro will discuss spacesuits, spacewalks and what's ahead for NASA.

Johanna became fascinated with space while in high school. She completed three internships, two at Goddard Space Flight Center and one jointly with Georgia Tech and Marshall Space Flight Center. At that point, she decided to major in aerospace engineering at Georgia Tech. In January 2006, Pineiro became a JSC co-op student and joined NASA full time in 2009.

In addition to her talk, Pineiro will have one of the rocks NASA astronauts brought back from the moon which visitors will be able to hold.

Bring the kids to this inspiring presentation.
