The National Commission on Neighborhoods was established by Title II, The National Neighborhood Policy Act, Public Law 95-24, on April 24, 1977. The Commission was composed of twenty members who reflected broad racial, ethnic, political, and geographic diversity. Sixteen members were appointed from the public sector by President Carter. Two members Joel Pritchard, and James J. Blanchard were from the U.S. House of Representatives, and two members Jake Garn and William Proxmire, were from the U.S. Senate. The Chairman of the Commission was State Senator Joseph F. Timilty of Massachusetts.

The Commission created five task forces which investigated economic development, reinvestment, human services, and fiscal and legal obstacles to neighborhood revitalization and governance. The Commission also conducted field hearings in Baltimore, Cleveland, St. Louis, Chicago, Los Angeles, and Seattle; and sponsored several issue conferences on re-investment, fiscal empowerment of neighborhood organizations, HUD programs, neighborhood institutions, and multi-family housing.

Private consultants and a staff of professionals were employed to prepare studies and to coordinate the various activities of the Commission.

The Commission's final report was delivered to President Carter and Congress on March 19, 1979. The final report included recommendations on economic development, housing, neighborhood self-help programs, and tax codes.

Biographical Information for Members of the National Commission on Neighborhoods

Chairman: Senator Joseph F. Timilty

Joseph F. Timilty was born October 3, 1938 in Boston, Massachusetts. After attending Providence College and serving in the United States Marine Corps, Timilty returned home and managed the family business. He first entered politics by working for Ted Kennedy in the U.S. Senate campaign in 1962. Timilty was a candidate for Mayor of Boston in 1971, 1975 and 1979. He was an American politician who served in the Massachusetts Senate from 1972 to 1985 and was a member of the Boston City Council from 1967 to 1971. In 1976, Senator Timilty was statewide coordinator for the Carter/Mondale Campaign in Pennsylvania, a state which Carter carried. He was active in the Carter campaign through most of the year working in several states during the primaries.

Timilty was appointed a teaching fellow at the Harvard University's Kennedy Institute for Politics in 1972, where he has taught practical politics courses, as well as urban affairs. Senator Timilty is on the faculty of the Boston University Urban Affairs Department teaching a course and leading seminars in the Metropolitan College on urban legislating and lobbying techniques. In 2001, he was a candidate in the special election to fill the vacancy in the 9th congressional district caused by the death of Joe Moakley. He dropped out of the race due to fundraising issues.

Since his election to the Senate, Timilty has been chairman of the Legislature's Joint Committee on Urban Affairs which handles annual legislative activity in such areas as public housing, private government-assisted housing, urban redevelopment, tenant-landlord relations, and zoning. The work of the Committee bears on the housing needs of thousands of lower-income persons across Massachusetts and programs administered by the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency and the Massachusetts Department of Community Affairs. It deals with the real estate industry and tenant organizations, and local officials in all the communities of the Commonwealth.

Carbone devotes virtually all of his responsibilities as majority leader, a post which pays $4,000 per year. Two years ago he stepped down as chairman of the Democratic Town Committee so that he could spend more time on economic development on a state and national level.

In 1975, Carbone became a consultant to the University of Hartford's City Institute, which conducts adult education programs that emphasize the interrelationships between cities and suburbs. He is a frequent guest lecturer at the University and several other colleges and high

Gale Cincotta

Gale Cincotta is co-founder and Executive Director of the National Training and Information Center of Chicago, Illinois. Since its inception in 1972, NTIC has been involved in the training of community residents, and the provision of technical assistance for the purpose of preserving and upgrading the quality of community life. Mrs. Cincotta is also Chairperson of National People's Action, a nationwide network of community organizations with affiliates in 117 cities, whose goal is to impact on a national level the formation of urban policy. In 1973, Mrs. Cincotta helped establish the Metropolitan Area Housing Alliance (MAHA) of Chicago, a city-wide coalition of community groups to work on such issues as FHA abuses, mortgage and insurance red lining, and utility rates.

Since 1974, Mrs. Cincotta has been a member of the Central Board of the Neighborhood Housing Services of Chicago, Chairperson of the Operations Committee and of the Site Selection Committee. She is also a Board member of the Center for Governmental Studies of Washington, D. C.; Member of the Steering Committee and Housing Task Force of the National Urban Coalition, Washington, D. C.; and Vice President of the Advisory Committee on Racial, Ethnic and Native Participation in the Bicentennial for the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration.

Senator Jake Garn

Edwin Jacob (Jake) Garn, 45, was born in Richfield, Utah and raised in Salt Lake City. He obtained his B.S. degree in Business and Finance at the University of Utah where he also completed a year of graduate study in Business Administration.

Prior to becoming active in city government, Senator Garn was in the insurance business and the U.S. Navy as a pilot.

Senator Garn was elected to the Salt Lake City Commission in 1967 and Mayor in 1971. As Mayor, he was noted for his emphasis on consolidation of local government and modernization of city administration. Focusing on problems of the cities, he became active in the National League of Cities, where he served in several leadership positions including First Vice-President in 1974, and Honorary President in 1975. During his term as Mayor, Senator Garn was also a member of the New Coalition (a group of state and local officials which deals with the federal government) and was appointed to the President's Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations. He was elected to the U.S. Senate in November 1974.

As a member of the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, Senator Garn has been an advocate of fiscal conservatism, protection of small business and a critic of government over-regulation. He has successfully sponsored legislation to revitalize urban neighborhoods and to simplify the credit procedure for real estate settlements. The Senator is ranking Minority member of the Subcommittee on Rural Housing. The National Federation of Independent Businessmen awarded him their "Guardian of Small Business" award and he was named "Watchdog of the Treasury" by the National Association of Businessmen. Senator Garn also serves on the subcommittees on Housing and Urban Affairs and International Finance.

Harold W. Greenwood

Harold W. Greenwood is Chairman of the Board and President of Midwest Federal Savings and Loan Association, Minneapolis, Minnesota. Under Mr. Greenwood's leadership, Midwest Federal has grown to $1.3 billion in assets and become a pioneer in the field of urban neighborhood reinvestment. A graduate of the University of Minnesota with additional study in law and accountancy, he has long been active in local civic, community, political and trade association affairs. He was elected president of the Minnesota Savings and Loan League at age 31, and has also served as Legislative Chairman of the National Savings and Loan League.

He serves on the Boards of St. Mary's Junior College, the Minneapolis Neighborhood Housing Services, and Security Savings and Loan Association of Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Mr. Greenwood has visited 37 countries representing the White House and the Agency for International Development on international housing and finance. He has also served as President of the United Nations Association of Minneapolis and as Chairman of the Advisory Council to the United Nations Association. He was named one of 200 outstanding young Americans by Time Magazine in 1974, and as one of ten outstanding young men by the Minnesota Jaycees in 1968. He received the Outstanding American Award from the American Academy of Achievement in 1970.

Maynard Jackson

Maynard Holbrook Jackson, Jr., was inaugurated as Mayor of Atlanta on January 7, 1974, having won the election with 59.2 % of the total vote cast. Jackson, at 35, defeated 10 other candidates and became not only the city's first black mayor, but also the youngest person ever to hold Atlanta's highest executive office and the youngest mayor of a major American city. Jackson's victory forged a working coalition of black and white citizens who see in their city administration a chance for dynamic progress, improved quality of life, creative problem-solving and justice for all.

As a result, the Board of Washington's nationally prestigious American Institute for Public Service, by a one-vote margin over Watergate reporters Woodward and Bernstein, selected Maynard Jackson to receive its 1974 award for "The Greatest public service performed by an American 35 years or under." Time Magazine, in July, 1974, named Maynard Jackson one of the "200 young leaders of America"; and in 1975 and 1976 Ebony magazine named him as one of the "100 most influential black Americans".

During his first term of office, Mayor Jackson, a longtime advocate of neighborhood preservation and revitalization programs committed the resources of his administration to a sensitive and balanced program of neighborhood support. Consequently, the city of Atlanta was selected as one of ten cities to participate in the neighborhood housing services program. Moreover, Mayor Jackson continuously has sought new ways to directly involve citizens in the decisions which affect their lives. For example, Atlanta's neighborhood planning program, created by Mayor Jackson's administration is a leading model of citizen participation in American urban planning.

At Mayor Jackson's recommendation, Atlanta's new city charter requires the development of a one-year, five-year and fifteen-year comprehensive development plan (CDP). Also, the charter stipulates citizen involvement in the development of the CDP. This allows neighborhoods and communities to bring their ideas, suggestions and priorities to the attention of city governments for incorporation in the comprehensive development plan.

Norman Krumholz

Norman Krumholz was recently appointed Director of Housing and Community Development for the City of Cleveland.
