MEET CIVIL RIGHTS LEADER AND FORMER AMBASSADOR ANDREW YOUNG Free Discussion and Book Signing Monday, November 1

Atlanta, GA. – Join us on Monday, November 1st as we welcome former Ambassador and Civil Rights leader Andrew Young to the Carter Presidential Center for a discussion and book signing. Ambassador Young and his godson Kabir Sehgal will discuss their book Walk In My Shoes. Ted Turner will host the event and CNN anchor Fredricka Whitfield will moderate the discussion. After the discussion, Young and Sehgal will sign copies of their book.

Outwrite Books will be selling Walk In My Shoes at the event. Doors to the Carter Center Day Chapel will open at 5:30, the discussion will begin at 6:30 and will be followed by the book signing and a reception. For more information call 404-865-7109. The event is free and open to the public; no reservations are required.

A top aide to Martin Luther King, Jr., and one of history's most important civil rights leaders, Andrew Young has been a witness to history and made his own. During the civil rights movement, he worked tirelessly as a strategist and negotiator in the campaigns that resulted in the Civil Rights Act and Voting Rights Act, and was at Dr. King's side when he was assassinated.

For years, he has been mentoring his godson, Kabir Sehgal, in correspondence and conversation. In this entertaining and provocative discourse, Young shares his thoughts and meditations on such important topics as civil rights, race, faith, love, and leadership.

It's an inter-generational dialogue between Godfather and Godson, a living Tuesdays with Morrie. "This book is my attempt to humbly pass along a few anecdotes, life lessons, and insights to prepare you for the long journey ahead," Young says.
