The Carter Presidential Library Update

News20-07

April 1, 2020

From the Director

We, like all National Archives facilities, are remaining closed with our staff working from home because of the Covid-19 health emergency. But we are still available to serve you as best we can. Whether it is a research request to our archivists, a virtual tour of the

As President Carter's teacher taught him, "We must adjust to changing times and still hold to unchanging principles." These are challenging times for all of us, but our principles of service to the public remain firm.

You can stay connected to us through our website (www.jimmycarterlibrary.gov), as well as our Facebook, Twitter and Instagram feeds. We look forward to the time when we can invite you back to the Carter Presidential Library in person.

In the meantime, stay safe and healthy.
