Belafonte & Brokaw Coming to Carter Library

Atlanta, GA. – The Carter Presidential Library welcomes Harry Belafonte and Tom Brokaw this week for very special events.

Singer and civil rights activist Harry Belafonte will be at the Carter Center on Wednesday, Nov. 16th at 7pm discussing his new biography My Song: A Memoir. The Atlanta Journal Constitution had a wonderful story on Belafonte and his book. Read it at <http://www.accessatlanta.com/atlanta-events/belafonte-still-sings-the-1224128.html>.

Tickets are $33 per person and include a signed first edition copy of the book. A couple's ticket price is $45 (good for 2 seats but just one book). Tickets are available at A Cappella Books 484-C Moreland Avenue NE, Atlanta, GA 30307 or on line at www.acappellabooks.com.

The next evening at 7pm (November 17th) award winning Journalist Tom Brokaw comes to the Carter Center. Brokaw will discuss his new book The Time of Our Lives. Tickets for this special event also are available at A Cappella Books, 484-C Moreland Avenue NE, Atlanta, GA 30307 or on line at www.acappellabooks.com.

The ticket price is $28 and includes a signed first edition copy of the book. A couples ticket price is $40 (good for 2 seats but just one book). Seating is limited so get your ticket early. Doors to the Carter Center Day Chapel open at 6pm and the talk begins at 7pm.

Rooted in the values, lessons, and verities of generations past and of his South Dakota upbringing, Brokaw weaves together inspiring stories of Americans who are making a difference and personal stories from his own family history, to engage us in a conversation about our country and to offer ideas for how we can revitalize the promise of the American Dream.

Don't miss these two once in a lifetime events.
