Thanksgiving Week at the Carter Library Former Coke CEO Book signing, Storytellers, Last Chance to See Read My Pins

Atlanta, GA. There are lots of things to do at the Carter Presidential Library & Museum during Thanksgiving Week. We are open every day this coming week except Thanksgiving Day.

On Monday, November 21st from 6pm until 8pm, former Coca-Cola Chairman and C.E.O. E. Neville Isdell will be at the Carter Center's Day Chapel for a discussion of his new book Inside Coca-Cola. The discussion is sponsored by the World Affairs Council of Atlanta and will be followed by a book signing reception. The event is free and open to the public. Doors open at 5pm. For more information, go to www.wacatlanta.org.

On Friday, the day after Thanksgiving, a Carter Library tradition continues as members of the Southern Order of Storytellers return to tell tales and epic poems that the whole family will enjoy. The storytelling will be in the museum theater at 2pm on November 25th. It is included at no additional charge with your paid museum admission. Remember, children 16 and under are always free.

This coming week is also your last chance to see the wonderful collection of approximately 200 pins worn by former Secretary of State Madeleine Albright. Read My Pins shows how Albright, the first female U.S. Secretary of State, used jewelry as a means of diplomacy. The exhibit's last day at the Carter Museum is Sunday, November 27th,

Our author lecture program resumes on Tuesday, November 29th at 7pm with journalist Peter Godwin discussing his new book The Fear. It is a powerful--and often achingly personal--account of recent events in Zimbabwe.

On Wednesday, November 30th at 7pm, author Chip Bishop discusses and signs his book The Lion and the Journalist about the unlikely friendship of Theodore Roosevelt and journalist Joseph Bucklin Bishop.

And on Thursday, December 1st, Dr. Nassir Ghaemi discusses and signs his best seller A First-Rate Madness. A professor of psychiatry at Tufts University who serves also on the faculty of the Harvard Medical School, Dr. Ghaemi uses outstanding figures from history to illustrate how bipolar mentality can disable or enhance the ability of leaders to cope with crisis. His subjects are William T. Sherman, Ted Turner, Winston Churchill, Abraham Lincoln, Mahatma Gandhi, Martin Luther King Jr., Franklin D. Roosevelt, John F. Kennedy and Adolf Hitler.

All three book signing events begin at 7pm and are free and open to the public.
