Curriculum Guide: The President’s Travels

Unit 10 of 19:

The Camp David Accords

“I have signed the treaty of peace with our great neighbor, with Egypt. The heart is full and overflowing.”

Menachem Begin, signing ceremony, March 26, 1979

441 Freedom Parkway, Atlanta, GA, 30312 | 404-865-7100 | www.jimmycarterlibrary.gov
By 1978, the modern Israeli state had been in existence for 30 years – years marked by armed conflict and regional war. Following Egyptian President Sadat’s unprecedented trip to address the Israeli Knesset, President Carter invited the two parties to meet at Camp David, Maryland to discuss peaceful options that might end the conflict between the two nations. The negotiations were fraught with drama, but the end result was a promising chance for compromise and peace.

Timeline

May 14, 1948: The modern state of Israel is created. The new country was immediately invaded, but its armies successfully defeated the invaders.

June 5 – 11, 1967: Israel fights the Six Days’ War against neighboring Arab countries. At the conflict’s end, Israel doubled its land area by taking the Sinai, Gaza, and the Golan Heights.

1973: Egypt and Syria start what becomes the Yom Kippur War/ Ramadan War to reclaim land lost in 1967. After back and forth fighting, Israel makes small gains compared to its previous holdings.

September 5 – 17, 1978: President Carter meets with Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt at Camp David, Maryland. The Camp David Accords are signed at the end of this meeting.

March 26, 1979: Begin and Sadat sign the Egyptian-Israeli Peace Treaty at the White House.
Thinking About Peace

The information in the Camp David Accords exhibit at the Museum can tell students a great deal about the peace process, and the people who worked to achieve the agreement.

Why Camp David?

After viewing the exhibit, students can consider why President Carter invited Begin and Sadat to Camp David, instead of another location. What was unique about the Camp David retreat? Why did he encourage the leaders to come to the United States? Use the map on the following page to find evidence to support students’ arguments.

Artistic Interpretations

Students can select one of many pieces of art on display in the exhibit, and write a short reflection paragraph explaining why that piece of art represented the artist’s vision of hope for Middle Eastern peace.

Personal Connections

While viewing the exhibit’s video, students should consider the value of personal connections in international diplomacy. President Carter tells a poignant story about how he kept Prime Minister Begin at Camp David, and working toward an agreement, by discussing their grandchildren. Following the field trip, students can discuss whether or not they think this type of personalized diplomacy is still relevant today, and identify situations where they think it might help or hinder international relations.

Documentary Evidence

A number of documents are on display in this exhibit, including President Carter’s handwritten notes, draft versions of the Accords, and a facsimile of the actual peace treaty signed the following year. On the page following the map is an organizer students can use to identify the significance of these documents.

F. Write a question to the mapmaker that is left unanswered by this map.
Since the formation of Israel in 1948, the areas controlled by Israel and its neighbors have changed, leaving intense disagreements about where official lines should be drawn.

1) Give each student a map of Israel as it existed after its creation. Note boundaries, and the presence or absence of Gaza, the West Bank, the Golan Heights, and the Sinai Peninsula. Use the graphic organizer following the maps to help students track these changes.

2) Show students maps of the area following each of the following conflicts/treaties:
   a. Six Days’ War (1967)
   b. Yom Kippur/Ramadan War
   c. Egyptian-Israeli Peace Treaty (1979)

3) Have students record boundary changes on their graphic organizers. Discuss reasons that these borders have shifted.

4) Give each student a map of areas currently controlled by Israel and its neighbors. Discuss how these areas have changed since 1948.

5) In summation, have each student write a short reflection on the role that land has played in regional conflict since the creation of the Israeli state. Students should refer to the maps studied to support their arguments.

The 1979 peace treaty seemed to indicate a hopeful future for Middle Eastern peace. Unfortunately, the assassination of Sadat two years later by an Islamic fundamentalist signaled a change in regional politics that would lead to further violence and bloodshed that continues today. As a follow-up to any activities about the Camp David Accords, teachers will want to have students evaluate later events and peace efforts to see what long-term impact the Accords and subsequent peace treaty have had on the region.

President Carter has written several books about issues in the Middle East, including The Blood of Abraham and Palestine: Peace, Not Apartheid.
The leaders of Israel, Egypt, and the United States met at Camp David in 1978 to discuss solutions to an agreement to bring peace to Israel. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin had tense discussions which were mediated by President Carter. Together they were able to achieve a peace agreement. There are numerous documents available through the Carter Library and Museum that can be used to help students understand what took place during the talks. The Camp David Accords illustrate the difficulties and nuances of high level talks and the twists and turns of the negotiation process. For some background reading and an introduction to the peace talks have students read this article.

Students with access to the Internet can access the American Experience website for the timeline of events and descriptions for the Peace Accords. Click on the feature called “Brokering Peace” or the text only version to research the events. In addition, the President’s daily dairy for the first day and the last day of the peace process gives extra insight into the internal workings of the president’s role as negotiator.

Once students have an understanding of the peace talks and their progression, have students complete the timeline activity below.

Timeline Activity

Students will use the information provided from the Brokering Peace website to create an illustrated timeline of the events of the 1978 Camp David Accords. Students should create a poster or computer document with dates in chronological order and characteristics of the events and talks that were ongoing. Encourage students to be creative in their timelines by doing more than just a line and dates, but adding pictures, quotes and graphics to display the process of the peace accords, the leaders involved, and the path toward the agreement.

President Carter’s handwritten notes
The negotiations between President Sadat of Egypt and Prime Minister Menachem Begin of Israel

Students will examine the notes that President Carter took during the negotiation process and his framework for a settlement in Sinai.

1. Students will create a graphic organizer such as a chart or list that summarizes the framework.

2. Students should pay particular attention to the president’s role as negotiator in the peace process and his efforts towards getting all parties to agree to a treaty and concluding the process in a timely manner.

3. Students can use a Document Analysis worksheet found on the last page to examine one of the following documents.

3. In conclusion, students should write an essay describing the role of President Carter in the Camp David Accords and how successful he was at negotiating a peace agreement.
Framework for a Settlement in Sinai

In order to achieve peace between them, Israel and Egypt agree to negotiate in good faith with a goal of concluding within three months of the signing of this framework a peace treaty between them. [There are no preconditions to the commencement of the negotiations.]

All of the principles of UN Resolution 242 will apply in this resolution of the dispute between Israel and Egypt. Peace Treaty.

Unless otherwise mutually agreed, terms of the peace treaty will be implemented.
between two and three years after the peace treaty is signed.

In the peace treaty the issue of: a) the full exercise of Egyptian sovereignty up to the internationally recognized border between Egypt and mandated Palestine; b) withdrawal of Israeli personnel from the Sinai; c) the use of airfields near El Arish, [Rafah, [As Safaj, [Islam el Sheik, [Arish, [El Arish, and [Afis, for civilian purposes only; d) the right of free passage by ships of Israel and other nations through the Strait of Tiran, the Gulf of Aqaba, and the Suez Canal; e) the construction of an international highway.
between the Sinai and Jordan stationing near Elat; and 2) the reduction of military forces of military threat against Israel and Egypt by the steps listed below (will be resolved by negotiations between the parties).

Stationing of forces

-- Within an area lying approximately 50 kilometers (km) east of the Gulf of Suez and the Suez Canal, no more than one division of Egyptian mechanized or infantry armed forces will be stationed. The stake

-- Only United Nations forces and civil police equipped with light weapons to perform normal police functions will be stationed.
-- in the area not included above, border patrol units, not to exceed three battalions, will supplement the civil police in maintaining order.

The exact demarcation of the above areas will be mutually agreed during the peace negotiations.

Early warning stations may exist, remain or be established as mutually agreed to insure compliance with the terms of the agreement.
United Nations forces will be stationed in the Suez of Sherkh area to ensure freedom of passage through the Straits of Suez. They will be removed only if both parties agree and after such agreement is approved by the Security Council of the United Nations.

Normal relations will be established between Egypt and Israel, including: full recognition; diplomatic, economic and cultural relations; termination of economic boycott and barriers to free movement of goods and people; and mutual protection of citizens by the due process of law.
Interim Withdrawal

Between three months and nine months after the signing of the peace treaty, all Israeli forces will withdraw to east of a line extending from a point [just] east of El Arish to Ras Muhammad. The exact location of this line to be determined by mutual agreement.
Framework for outline of a settlement in Sinai

Principles

1) Disputes will be settled by peaceful means. The parties will refrain from the threat or use of force.

2) The principles of all of the principles of U.N. Resolution 242 will apply in the resolution of the dispute concerning the Sinai.

Final agreement:

The exercise of

a) Full Egyptian sovereignty will be restored in the Sinai, up to the internationally recognized border between Egypt and mandated Palestine.

b) Except as otherwise agreed in the final peace treaty, all Israeli personnel will be withdrawn from the Egyptian territory.
THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

9/15/78

To Pres. Sadat & P.M. Begin:

We are approaching the final stage of our negotiations. With your approval, I propose that today we receive your most constructive recommendations, that tomorrow (Saturday) be devoted to drafting efforts, and that we conclude the meeting at Camp David at some time during the following day. We will, at that time, issue a Common Statement to the press, drafted together. Additionally, we should agree not to make any further public statements prior to noon on Monday. Please let me know if you object to any of these proposals.

J. C.
Settlement in West Bank and Gaza

Late in the evening, Saturday, September 7th, 1975, in Japan, Abba Eban, Sec. Vance and I were concluding discussions on the final wording of the section on the West Bank and Gaza.

Section 6 referred to the Israeli settlements and was drafted in the American proposal, stated:

Prime Minister Begin objected to the language and began to make several alternate proposals, all of which were rejected by me. They included: 1) a fixed time (three months) during which no new settlements would be constructed; 2) prohibitions against civilian settlements only; 3) permit the right to build a limited number of new settlements; etc. All of these proposals were rejected by me.

Finally, we agreed on the exact language concerning the settlements, and that the paragraph would be removed from the West Bank-Gaza section and included in a letter from Begin to me. I told him it could not be a secret letter and the Prime Minister replied that the text would be made public.
It was clear and obvious that the "repetition" applied to the West Bank and Gaza.

Early the next day I informed Pres. Sadat of the agreement.

On Sunday afternoon Mr. Sadat brought to me a proposed text which differed substantially from that on which we had agreed. I informed him that it was unsatisfactory, and said to him the text on which we had agreed, which was still lying on my desk. He did not disagree with the agreed text.

LESSON SUMMARY

The Carter Center analyzes conflicts around the world and aids the parties in conflict resolution negotiations. Much of the Carter Center's focus is on achieving peace in the Middle East. This lesson examines the Middle East from a geographical standpoint as a cultural region. Students will examine the cultural geography of the Middle East and gain an understanding of this unique area of the world.

What is a cultural region?

Vocabulary

Activities

1. A Cultural Region: Locate the countries in the Middle East on a map. Compare and contrast the religions and lifestyles of the various countries. How are they the same? Different? Complete the map analysis chart.

   Geographical Region: Map

2. Conflict Resolution: Have students think about common conflict areas in the classroom or at home. What is the conflict usually about? Property, disrespect, other? Have the students create a conflict resolution group to address complicated situations like bullying. Organize a committee with all groups or parties represented for diverse viewpoints using the Carter Center conflict resolution model as a guide. Visit the map table at the Carter Center Library and Museum and complete research to find out the conflict resolution methods used during negotiations. Research U.N. Resolutions 242 and 338 as well as the Camp David Accords. What are the principles behind these resolutions and accords? What values are present and form the basis of conflict resolution? How can you apply these values in your daily life to avoid conflict and promote peace in your relationships with others? What universal needs are recognized in these documents?

Essential Questions

1. What is the relationship between human rights and peace?
2. Where in the Middle East are major conflicts occurring? Why?
3. Why does the Carter Center engage in activities to promote human rights around the world?
4. What can you make sure that your life is as peaceful as possible?
5. What does peace look like to you?

Did you know that blue is the official color of peace?
4. Play the Peacemaker Game: Play the game that challenges you to succeed as a leader where others have failed. Experience the joy of bringing peace to the region, or plunging it into disaster. Play the demo at http://www.peacemakergame.com/

5. Conflicts in the Middle East: Have students identify where major conflicts are occurring in the Middle East and locate the locations on a map. Why is the conflict happening? What is a solution? View the interactive timeline of Middle East events since 1900 to get a better understanding of the issues. http://www.pbs.org/wgbh/globalconnections/mideast/timeline/index.html

6. Docs Teach: Have students complete the DocsTeach activities using primary sources. http://docsteach.org/activities/4540 SS7H2 The student will analyze continuity and change in Southwest Asia (Middle East) leading to the 21st century.
a. Explain how European partitioning in Southwest Asia (Middle East) after the breakup of the Ottoman Empire led to regional conflict.
b. Explain the historical reasons for the establishment of the modern State of Israel in 1948; include the Jewish religious connection to the land, the Holocaust, anti-Semitism, and Zionism in Europe.
c. Describe how land and religion are reasons for continuing conflicts in Southwest Asia (Middle East).
d. Explain U.S. presence and interest in Southwest Asia; include the Persian Gulf conflict and invasions of Afghanistan and Iraq.

SS7G8 The student will describe the diverse cultures of the people who live in Southwest Asia (Middle East).
a. Explain the differences between an ethnic group and a religious group.
b. Explain the diversity of religions within the Arabs, Persians, and Kurds.
c. Compare and contrast the prominent religions in Southwest Asia (Middle East): Judaism, Islam, and Christianity.
d. Explain the reason for the division between Sunni and Shia Muslims

ENDURING UNDERSTANDINGS

Students will understand that when there is conflict between or within societies, change is the result.

How did European partitioning in Southwest Asia (Middle East) after the breakup of the Ottoman Empire lead to regional conflict?
How is the origin of Judaism, Islam, and Christianity a source of conflict over the land?
How does anti-Semitism, the Holocaust, and Zionism relate to the establishment of the modern state of Israel?

Students will understand that the culture of a society is the product of the religion, beliefs, customs, traditions, and government of that society.

What is the difference between an ethnic group and a religious group?
How are the religions of the Arabs, Persians, and Kurds diverse?
What are the similarities and differences between Judaism, Islam, and Christianity?
What is the reason for the division between Sunni and Shia Muslims?
