MEMORANDUM FOR: THE PRESIDENT

FROM: James T. McIntyre, Jr. JM

SUBJECT: H.R. 3282 - Asbestos School Hazard Detection and Control Act of 1979

Issue

Should the Administration threaten a veto of pending legislation to establish new Federal grant and loan programs for detection and removal of asbestos from public and private schools?

Recommendation

The Administration should oppose the legislation and, if necessary, threaten veto.

Pending Legislation

On May 15, the House Education and Labor Committee reported H.R. 3282 (Miller (D) Calif., and 47 others), which would authorize:

- $30 million in matching grants for asbestos detection programs in local schools;
- $300 million in 20-year interest free loans to share half the cost of asbestos cleanup.

Eligibility for this aid would be retroactive to January 1, 1977.

The House bill has been granted a rule, and could reach the House floor soon. A companion bill, S. 1658, has been introduced in the Senate (Javits and 5 others).

In testimony on a predecessor House bill, HEW opposed enactment. Subsequently, former Secretary Califano asked OMB for clearance of a report (which we have not cleared) favoring Federal funds for a detection program only. Justice, Treasury, and Commerce oppose the legislation or some of its features. EPA will support a position of opposition. The Administration has not formally communicated its position on H.R. 3282 to the Congress.

Background

Before 1973, materials containing asbestos had been sprayed onto the walls and ceilings of numerous buildings, including perhaps five to fifteen percent of all schools. In 1973, EPA prohibited spraying of easily crumbled materials containing more than one percent asbestos for use as insulation or fire-proofing. In 1978, this prohibition was extended to spraying for any purpose.

No cancer-risk threshold level can be set for asbestos. Because children may be more susceptible than adults to the effects of breathing air containing asbestos fibers, there is a particular concern over asbestos in the schools. The costs of detection are probably low--perhaps $200 per school. The costs of cleanup could approach $500 million to over $1 billion nationally.

Current Federal Activities

Earlier this year, EPA began to assist state and local governments to deal with health-threatening asbestos, including (a) dissemination of information on detection and cleanup alternatives; (b) training of technical assistance personnel; and (c) a reporting program, to be completed in the near future, that will provide information on the extent of the problem, state and local activity to address it, and costs associated with the activities.

The program is well underway, and many States are acting to protect their students, without Federal funds. Some States, like New York, however, are also pressing for Federal financial aid.

EPA also will soon publish an advance notice of proposed rulemaking to obtain public comment on its consideration of regulations to require States to act where they have not done so voluntarily. EPA plans to have a regulatory program in effect in time for corrective action before the beginning of the 1980-81 school year. Some States are awaiting the EPA regulations before taking any action.

Reasons for Opposing the Legislation

There is no Federal liability for the use of asbestos in school buildings. Moreover, the source of asbestos in schools is a localized environmental problem in that the problem in one school does not affect individuals elsewhere. In contrast,

- Federal grants are made for construction of sewage treatment plants because of the "externalities" of sewage on downstream communities.
- Our recent "superfund" proposal for hazardous waste dumps is directed at abandoned sites where direct liability is hard to establish and would be financed primarily by industry fees.

The Federal Government has never provided funds to assist public or private agencies to meet environmental requirements that have no externalities or where Federal liability is not clear.

Federal funds for detection and cleanup would set a broad and costly precedent in other areas:

- Any direct Federal assumption of some or all of the costs of detection and cleanup of asbestos in local public and private schools would make it hard to defend not doing so in other types of public or private facilities.
- In the workplace, the Federal Government is under growing pressure to provide funding for medical and other costs associated with asbestos where Federal liability has been claimed.
- In the general environment, Federal funds for detection and cleanup of one pollutant--asbestos--would set a clear precedent for Federal funding for amelioration of other general environmental pollutants.

Finally, there is no convincing need for Federal funding. Costs of detection are low. Although cleanup costs can be high, many state and local school districts have acted without Federal aid. The Federal Government's actions to date (information, technical assistance, research, and possibly regulation) are an appropriate and sufficient Federal response.

Other Considerations

- The legislation has obvious appeal--the protection of school children from asbestos. A veto would be difficult, and sustaining it would require enlisting support of key members of the Budget and Appropriations Committees.

- H.R. 3282 was reported out of the Committee, however, with dissenting minority views. The minority agree with the intent of the bill, but have serious reservations about a new spending program, favoring an alternative of using up to one percent of available appropriations for aid to elementary and secondary education.
- Environmental interest groups have pushed EPA to take regulatory action and have expressed less interest in financial assistance.
- There is a link between educational and labor interests in the Congress since asbestos is a workplace as well as a school concern. Opposing this bill might encourage a coalition of groups around the asbestos issue.

Decision

Utilize veto threat if necessary

Oppose enactment, but remain silent on veto threat

Develop substitute to state responsibility for financing removal.

Reconsider opposition to legislation

MEMORANDUM TO: THE PRESIDENT F.M.
FROM: FRANK MOORE Stu
STU EIZENSTAT
SUBJECT: MCINTYRE MEMO REGARDING ASBESTOS SCHOOL
HAZARD DETECTION AND CONTROL ACT OF 1979

We agree with Jim McIntyre that there is no compelling case for federal funding for asbestos detection and cleanup in schools, although there would be some health benefits available.

However, at a time when the Administration's health policy correctly is moving in the direction of preventive health, it will be very hard to explain opposition to this bill to the public -- it is evident from the accumulated research data that removal of asbestos from schools is one of the most important public health actions that must be accomplished. While the Administration could justly argue that EPA's regulatory actions force inactive states to remove asbestos from schools, an Administration veto threat on this will be interpreted as insensitivity to health needs of children.

House passage is virtually certain. In the Senate, a companion bill has been introduced by Javits, Williams and others and should receive favorable consideration in the Human Resources Committee. If the bill passes Congress, a veto would be very difficult to sustain.

George Miller, the main supporter in the House, has been one of our best friends in the House. He has worked hard on this bill and feels deeply that the Federal government should support detection and cleanup of this health hazard. On this basis alone, Congressional Liaison opposes using the veto threat.

Instead of alienating a friend (who incidentally presently has the lead in our efforts to get a decent reclamation bill) we should develop our own option(s) and work for its passage in the Senate. Our own option could be based on elimination of the detection grant program and changing the loan removal program into a state match grant program.

While continuing to oppose the current legislation, our own option would permit us to alter our public posture and give us something to negotiate with in the Senate.

We recommend that we should take no position until an Administration option(s) is developed.

Peanut Growers Told of Overseas Threat

By GORDON BORRELL

Virginia Pilot Staff Writer

LEWISTON—North Carolina peanut farmers Thursday were told that increased overseas competition may be threatening demand for their crops.

The warning came from an executive of Gold Kist, Inc., one of the largest commodities handlers in the nation, during the 27th annual meeting of the North Carolina Peanut Growers Association in Lewiston.

"Good quality here has caused world markets to look to the United States for their (peanut) needs," said Don Sands, an executive vice president of Gold Kist, Inc. "But increasing competition for the Virginia type peanut you produce is coming from China and Australia."

"The only thing that's going to keep you in the game is if you remain reliable suppliers and if you continue to provide good quality," he added.

About 700 Tar Heel farmers attended the association's annual meeting at the Lewiston Peanut Belt Research Station. The group, whose officers act as a lobbying and promotional body for peanut-related concerns, represents about 18,400 farmers.

"I believe we are at a crossroads," Sands said, "and you've got to watch the caution signs. Our growing and marketing strategies are going to have to change to keep up with what I see as intense competition coming our way."

State Agriculture Commissioner James A. Graham, who was scheduled to make a brief speech earlier Thursday morning, did not attend. Graham is on a two-week European tour with other U.S. Agriculture officials who are surveying the world market for American crops.

The concern for increased overseas competition comes on the heels of last month's announcement that North Carolina's 1979 peanut crop will be about 8 percent short. The state, which ranks third in the nation among peanut producers, annually exports about 20 percent of its 450 million pounds.

Sands also told the farmers that he believes there is a dire need for improvements in the research area of agricultural commodities and that the farmers may have to do it themselves.

"The cost of government and inflation has curtailed some of the research advancements that need to be made in agriculture," he said. "We'll have to take up the slack."

Sands also announced that Gold Kist, Inc., has joined nine other international cooperatives in buying controlling interests in the Alfred C. Toepfer Co. of Hamburg, West Germany.

The West German firm, the fifth largest commodities-handling firm in the world, does a $6-billion annual business, Sands said.

"It's going to give us an immediate position in the world market and help us significantly increase the promotion of peanuts around the world," he said.

After a morning session of speeches and business announcements for the association, the farmers climbed on trucks and rode into fields to inspect various peanut breeds.

Others remained at the Lewiston station to look over exhibits by North Carolina State University's Agriculture Department and to check out the various displays of farm equipment.

N.C. Farmers Still Favor Carter

LEWISTON, N.C.—If Jimmy Carter is looking for fertile ground to plant his reelection bid, he just may find it in North Carolina peanut fields.

"He's done what he could, and done it just about as good as anyone else," said Edgcombe County peanut farmer Bill Purvis, who works about 300 acres near Tarboro. "I'd vote for him even if it came down to Ted Kennedy vs. Jimmy Carter."

Other Tar Heel peanut farmers expressed similar feelings during Thursday's 27th annual meeting of the North Carolina Peanut Growers Association, a group that represents concerns of the state's 18,400 peanut farmers.

"He hasn't got all the support he should have, but he's done the best he could," said Harlin Patrick of Washington County. "I just might vote for him in this next election, but it depends on who runs against him. And I'm a Republican!"

The remarks came after the farmers heard an address by an executive of Gold Kist, Inc., the Georgia firm that handles President Carter's peanut warehouses in Plains.

In his speech, the executive praised Carter and then made humorous jabs at candidates Jerry Brown, John Connally and Kennedy.

"I want you to know he has done some things well and with style," Don Sands, a vice president with Gold Kist, Inc., told about 700 farmers at the day-long meeting.

Though the Peanut Growers Association is a nonpartisan group, many of the farmers who attended Thursday's annual meeting in Bertie County informally discussed Carter's troubles and said they will support him in 1980.

"As far as his farm programs go, he's doing all right," said David Pope of Wilson County as he leaned against a new combine on display at the meeting. "I at least feel like he's trying and he's honest. I'd vote for him again."

Pope's father, Charles Pope, also gave a pledge of support.

"I voted for him the last time and I'm voting for him again," he said. "It'll take him some time to do good in that office. He'll do better next time."

Although none said they thought they were benefiting from a fellow peanut farmer in the White House, it didn't seem to bother them.

"Mr. Carter in the last election was picked on so much about being a peanut farmer that he completely disassociated himself with the peanut business when he went into office," explained Joe Sugg, executive secretary of the association.

"It's very rare that we bring up politics in this organization," he said.

ARKANSAS: Bob Starr, managing editor, Arkansas Democrat, Little Rock. Conservative paper, Starr spent many years with the A.P. before retiring to teach journalism. He joined the Democrat several years ago and is considered very capable. The major issue of concern in Little Rock is the pending nomination of Henry Wood to a new federal district judgeship. Black leaders are challenging this appointment.

CALIFORNIA: Jim Gabbert, president, KIQI-AM/KIOI-FM, San Francisco. Gabbert is a former three-term President of the National Radio Broadcasters Association.

DELAWARE: Fred Hartmann, executive editor, Wilmington News-Journal (Gannett). Large, state-wide daily with a combined circulation of 130,000. Energy issues are of particular concern, especially home heating oil supplies.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Bill McIlwain, executive editor, The Washington Star (Time, Inc.). Until recently he was editor of the Boston Herald-American.

GEORGIA: Howard Eanes, managing editor, Augusta Chronicle.

IDAHO: Margaret Gough, editor and publisher, Parma Review. Very small weekly (1,100 circulation), Mrs. Gough recently took over the paper when her husband died suddenly. She wrote you following your July 15 speech: "Our nation needs you and I am doing what I can ... to try to help encourage our people to get busy in our communities to release their talents in solving our problems." She is an admirer, despite being Republican.

ILLINOIS: Ralph Otwell, editor, Chicago Sun-Times. The Sun-Times endorsed you in 1976, and has generally been supportive, especially on energy. They have taken no position on SALT yet. The major concern now is HEW's decision to withhold funds from Chicago pending a suitable busing plan. You will be in Chicago on October 15.

ILLINOIS, Cont'd: Humberto Perales, editor, El Manana, Chicago. Spanish-language weekly (56,500 circulation). Especially concerned about the impact of rising energy costs on the poor, inner city revitalization and unemployment.

J. D. George, editor and assistant general manager, Jerseyville Democrat News. A two-day-a-week publication; Jerseyville is on the Mississippi River near Alton. In an agricultural area, issues include the Rock Island strike and farm prices.

INDIANA: John Scott, editor, Anderson Herald. Small daily (20,000 circulation) about 40 miles northeast of Indianapolis. Concerned about the impact of energy shortages on farmers and gasohol development.

IOWA: Chuck Davis, editor and publisher, Hardin County Times/Iowa Falls Citizen. Two weekly papers in the center of the state, concerns include agricultural issues and gasohol development.

KANSAS: Joe Berkely, publisher, High Plains Journal, Dodge City. A "farmer's weekly", the paper is a co-sponsor of an Energy Forum which will be held beginning October 19. USDA's Farmers Home Administration and the Kansas Energy Office are the other sponsors. Objective of the Forum will be to present "solutions for the energy crisis that are practical and commercially available at the present time -- rather than being a survey of theoretical possibilities which may not be available for another ten years." You have been invited to attend, and have declined the invitation because of scheduling difficulties.

Joe Patterson, news director, KOAM-AM, Pittsburg. One of the most powerful stations in Kansas, they reach into Oklahoma, Arkansas and Missouri as well.

KENTUCKY: Ewell Balltrip, editor, Harlan County Enterprise, Harlan (Worrell Newspaper group). Small daily in the coal region of the state. Widely read by miners, Balltrip is knowledgeable about coal issues especially. May ask why you did not tour a mine during your recent trip to Kentucky.

MARYLAND: C. A. "Soupy" Lancaster, managing editor, Cumberland Evening & Sunday Times. Small daily on the West Virginia border in the Appalachian coal region. The area is suffering a 20% unemployment rate.

MASSACHUSETTS: Dave Greenway, national editor, Boston Globe (Affiliated Publications group). Will likely ask you about a possible Kennedy candidacy. Other issues of concern are home heating oil stocks in the northeast and apparent confusion in U. S. Middle East policy. The Globe has endorsed SALT.

Daniel Warner, managing editor, Lawrence Eagle-Tribune. This daily paper is in an area north of Boston on the New Hampshire border. Both the supply and cost of home heating oil for this winter are of concern. May ask about a possible Kennedy candidacy.

MICHIGAN: Karen Hudson, news director, WGPR-FM, Detroit. Black station, affiliated with WGPR-TV, which is owned by the Black Masons.

Dave Rood, editor and publisher, Delta Reporter, Gladstone. Small weekly in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. Rood was the editor of the Panax paper who quit a couple of years ago rather than run the story on how you were grooming Mrs. Carter to be Vice President in 1980.

MINNESOTA: Eric Eskola, news director, KDAL-AM, Duluth. Concerned about the Duluth Grain Terminal strike.

MISSOURI: Mike Davies, editor, Kansas City Star & Times (Capital Cities Communications group). Issues: Rock Island strike, Amtrak route cuts, location of new IRS building. Are generally supportive of you.

NEVADA: Bruce Hasley, managing editor, the Valley Times, North Las Vegas. Small "second" paper in Las Vegas, primarily concerned with impact of gasoline shortages on the tourist industry. May ask about your MX basing decision, which affects Nevada.

NEW HAMPSHIRE: Paul Tracy, editor-in-chief, Manchester Union Leader. The largest paper in the state, William Loeb is the publisher. Extremely conservative, some would say reactionary.

NEW JERSEY: Bob Hinman, general manager and associate editor, Mainland Journal, Pleasantville. Weekly near Atlantic City. Concerned about impact of gasoline shortages on tourist industry and environmental consequences of off-shore oil development.

OHIO: Jim Hastings, editor, Alliance Review. Small daily in northeastern part of state. Especially concerned about coal development issues.

Bob May, editor, Mansfield Journal (Horvitz Newspaper group). Midway between Cleveland and Columbus, energy issues and unemployment are of concern in Mansfield.

OREGON: Chuck Biechlin, news director, KATU-TV, Portland. ABC affiliate in the 22nd largest television market. Special interests include mass transit, inner city revitalization.

PENNSYLVANIA: Ted Zawistowski, editor, Straz (The Guard), Scranton. This Polish language weekly is published by the Polish National Union of America.

Keith Martin, anchor and producer, WBRE-TV, Wilkes-Barre. NBC affiliate in the 41st largest television market, Martin is especially interested in coal issues.

SOUTH CAROLINA: Beverly Spearman, news director, WOIC-AM, Columbia. Black station.

TEXAS: Glen Moyer, news editor, WOAI-AM, San Antonio. This powerful station reaches the southern half of Texas by day, and half of the country by night. Moyer is very concerned about San Antonio's conversion to coal in light of very large transportation cost increases. The city is now considering using coal imported from Australia.

UTAH:

Rob Rule, news director, KJQN-AM, Ogden.

VIRGINIA:

Milton Reid, editor and publisher, Norfolk Journal and Guide. This black weekly has a circulation of 23,000. Reid is a civil rights activist, community organizer and pastor of the New Calvary Baptist Church. He has also served as regional director of the SCLC.

WYOMING:

Don Richard, news director, KSGT-AM, Jackson. Affiliated with the Inter-Mountain Radio Network. You vacationed in the Jackson area last summer.

Dave Bonner, editor and publisher, Powell Tribune. Small twice-a-week publication in the northern part of the state. Cattle grazing lands, national park and forest expansions, strip mining issues are of local concern.

SUBJECT:

Talking Points for Meeting with Citizens Committee on Windfall Tax

There will be open press coverage of the first few minutes of your meeting with the Citizens Committee this morning, and it provides an excellent opportunity to call public attention to a set of impressive victories on energy legislation achieved this week in the Congress.

We need to call attention to the developing momentum on the Hill (because the press has not been giving it good coverage), and we suggest you open the meeting along the following lines:

- o The American people know there is an energy crisis. They are united; they want action; and they have made their feelings known to the Congress.
- o The Congress is responding. Momentum is building and in the last several days we have achieved important victories on several parts of our energy program.
- o Last night, the House and Senate conferees approved a good gas rationing and conservation bill . . . and I will sign it when it reaches my desk.
- o Yesterday, the Senate Energy Committee voted 15 - 3 to create an Energy Mobilization Board along the lines I proposed. Next week, the Committee will begin work on the Energy Security Corporation.
- o And earlier this week, the Senate voted 64 - 35 to include money for a fair and strong windfall profits tax and a strong synfuels program in the FY 80 budget.
- o Now we must sustain this momentum -- particularly on the windfall tax -- and you can help us in that effort.

I. PURPOSE

To meet with the Chairperson and Co-Chairperson of the National Citizens Coalition for the Windfall Profits Tax.

II. BACKGROUND

As you know, Governor Brendan Byrne of New Jersey has taken the lead in forming a "National Citizens Coalition for the Windfall Profits Tax". We have been working very closely with him in the selection of other co-chairpersons. He will serve as chairperson and as of Wednesday, September 19, the co-chairpersons of the Coalition are:

Business: Harding Lawrence, Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Braniff International. Lawrence has already identified staff to work with Byrne on this effort on a daily basis.

Labor: Robert Georgine, President, Building Trades, AFL-CIO

Women: Ruth Hinerfeld, President, League of Women Voters

Local

Official: Maynard Jackson, Chairman of the National Conference of Democratic Mayors

Entertainment: Jean Stapleton

We are now completing identification of about 100 leaders from across the country who will be the members of the Coalition. The membership list as of September 19 is attached.

The Coalition will be responsible for organizing a strong grass-roots effort to ensure a positive windfall tax vote from Congress. The effort will focus on passing the tax and not on the utilization of the money.

The "Campaign" will focus on disbursing information to the public as well as to Members of Congress.

Activities planned will include:

White House Briefing

In approximately ten days a White House briefing for the entire Coalition membership will be set up. This briefing will be followed by a major press conference and intensive Congressional visits and meetings by Coalition members.

Public Education Effort

Mailings will be developed to be sent from the Coalition to the general public, especially in states of key Senators. There will be a special mailing to member groups and constituencies of Co-Chairpersons and Coalition members.

Congressional Effort

A detailed mailing will be sent to members of the Senate Finance Committee. After Senate Finance Committee action, a mailing will be developed to be sent to the full Senate. Key Coalition members will visit members of the Senate Finance Committee as well as other Senators.

Media

There will be selective media appearances on talk and interview shows by Coalition members.

One page ads will be taken in major newspapers, and magazines to counter "Gulf Oil" type public relations efforts.

III. PARTICIPANTS

Governor Brendan Byrne, Chairperson, Bob Georgine, Harding Lawrence, and Ruth Hinerfeld, Co-Chairpersons will attend. Mayor Maynard Jackson, and Jean Stapleton will not be able to attend. Administration officials present will include Treasury Secretary William Miller; Energy Secretary Charles Duncan (tentative); Eliot Cutler, OMB, and myself.

IV. PRESS PLAN

White House photographer and press will be present for your initial remarks. They will then leave the room so that you can talk with the Chairperson and Co-Chairpersons. After the meeting, the Co-Chairpersons will meet with the press.

V. TALKING POINTS

Suggested talking points are attached.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

September 20, 1979

SUGGESTED TALKING POINTS FOR THE MEETING WITH THE CHAIRPERSON AND CO-CHAIRPERSONS OF THE "NATIONAL CITIZENS COALITION FOR THE WINDFALL PROFITS TAX"

- Thank Governor Byrne and the other Co-Chairpersons for their support of the windfall profits tax and commend them for initiating the Citizens Committee.
- Stress how important the passage of this tax is to the success of the Administration's Energy program.
- The revenues resulting from the windfall profits tax will be used toward the goals of energy independence and cushioning the impact of rapidly rising energy prices on the poor. This would include development of solar energy and synthetic fuels, improving energy-efficient mass transit systems, and a fuel assistance program for low-income families.
- As you know, the House of Representatives passed a windfall tax bill (H.R. 3919) during the summer. This bill is roughly similar to the Administration's bill. The legislation is currently in mark-up in the Senate Finance Committee where there is strong interest in weakening the tax. From there it will go to the Senate Floor, later this fall.
- We need your help to fight these efforts to weaken the tax. The Senate must see that there is tremendous public support for the windfall profits tax.
- It is only through groups like yours that we will be able to get this message to the Senate and succeed in passing a strong windfall profits tax.
- I hope all of you will go to the very important constituencies you represent to urge their support.
- I now would like to hear about the activities you have planned over the next few crucial weeks.
- Before you begin, let me introduce Secretaries Miller and Duncan to you. I know that they, as well as Anne Wexler, are very anxious to begin working with you.

Dear Mr. President:

I am a member of the Holy Apostolic Catholic Church of the East (Assyrian). There are 100,000 members of this ancient church in the United States and 500,000 world wide.

Also known as the Church of the East (Nestorian rite), the church is supposedly the oldest Christian Church in the world and its mass is recited in Aramaic, the language of Christ.

The Patriarch of the Church, His Holiness Mar Dinkha, has arrived from Iran and is presently visiting the churches in the United States. He is accompanied by the Metropolitan, His Grace Mar Narsi of Lebanon, and Mar Aprim Khamis of Chicago, Bishop of North America.

The Patriarch also serves as the titular as well as spiritual leader of the Assyrians in the Middle East although many also belong to Protestant, Catholic and Eastern Orthodox faiths.

The Patriarch has asked that I arrange for an appointment with you in order that he might discuss the plight of the Assyrians in Iran, Syria, Iraq, Kuwait, Lebanon and the Emirates.

If an appointment could be arranged, the most convenient time might be shortly before or after the visit of the Pope in order that the Patriarch might be able to participate in those activities.

I have noted that his Eminence, Archbishop Iakovos, head of the Greek Orthodox Archdiocese of North and South America, was honored by an invitation to the White House on September 18th in acknowledgement of his twenty years of inspired leadership. I firmly believe that a similar honor should be bestowed upon the Patriarch Mar Dinkha and the Metropolitan Mar Narsi. Illinois State Representative John Nimrod will be happy to serve as an interpreter at such a meeting, as well as Bishop Mar Aprim Khamis.

The Washington Post recently reported that a number of religious leaders - Catholic, Protestant and Jewish - also have been included in the White House guest list for the reception held in conjunction with Pope John Paul II's visit. Hopefully, the Patriarch, the Metropolitan and the Bishop can be invited to this affair as well as any other activities.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter. I would be personally honored and extremely grateful if your schedule can be adjusted to accommodate such a meeting. Rose Young of my staff can be contacted at 225-2461 in order to coordinate the necessary arrangements.

Respectfully,

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: JAMES T. McINTYRE, JR. J. McIntyre
SUBJECT: NASA Space Shuttle Management

Mr. President, we are confident that Dr. Frosch and other top officials at NASA are fully aware of the need to take steps to reorganize and strengthen the management of the shuttle program. We will immediately take steps to work with NASA on this issue.

Although I realize that there have been slippages and cost increases previously, Dr. Frosch's current assessment is a more detailed and comprehensive look at shuttle costs, technical problems and management than has been done before. OMB will work closely with NASA to assure that a thorough and exhaustive examination is made of shuttle costs and problems this fall -- to firm up additional budget requirements.

I will get with Dr. Frosch, Zbig and Frank immediately. We will prepare an assessment for your consideration, which will include a report by the three consultants who were appointed at your direction.

Dear Mr. President:

This is to request the delay of a GSA sale of two (2) parcels of property in Hawaii.

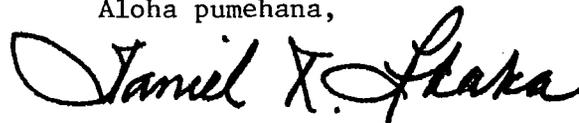

The sale is scheduled for Tuesday, September 25, 1979. One parcel of land is located in Waianae, Oahu. The second parcel is the Pauwela Lighthouse on the Island of Maui.

Governor George Ariyoshi has requested that the sale be stopped due to interest by the State in obtaining the property. The County of Maui is interested in obtaining the Pauwela Lighthouse for use by County residents.

I have made the same request to the Regional Administrator for GSA and Mr. R. G. Freeman, III, Administrator of GSA. I would appreciate your immediate attention to this matter.

If I may provide you with further information regarding this matter, please do not hesitate to contact me.

MRS. CARTER

From: Bob Maddox Bm
SUBJECT: Meeting with Billy Graham

On Wednesday morning, August 29, I met with Dr. Billy Graham at his home in Montreat, North Carolina. In every way he was cordial and gracious.

Matters Discussed

1. Feelings about the President.

Billy Graham and his staff remember with gratitude the President's willingness, many years ago, to chair a Graham film event in Americus, Georgia before an integrated audience.

Dr. Graham also remembers Governor Carter's role as Honorary Chairman of the Graham Crusade in Atlanta a few years ago.

Dr. Graham assured me he has complete confidence in, admiration and love for the President. He supports the President wholeheartedly. He prays daily for the President.

In the course of the conversation Dr. Graham referred to a quote attributed to him during the campaign in which he was supposedly criticizing Jimmy Carter's "born-again" candidacy. Dr. Graham gave me the proper statement which was not at all critical of Jimmy Carter.

It would give Dr. Graham pleasure to be of service to the President. He would especially welcome private time with him for conversation. Dr. Graham does not care to be a highly visible figure at the White House.

Electrostatic Copy Made for Preservation Purposes

SEP 7 1979

I thanked Dr. Graham for his support of SALT II. Dr. Graham declined a request to give Senate testimony on behalf of the agreement. He told me that he had consistently refused to give Senate testimony on any issue.

He assured me, however, that he would use every public platform at his disposal to talk about the agreement. He is scheduled for several major talk shows this fall.

We talked about Mark Hatfield's moratorium amendment. Dr. Graham would welcome moratorium but does not believe that such a step is possible at this time.

3. Miscellaneous Items

Dr. Graham urged the President to attend the Family of Man Conference Banquet in New York on September 27. "Other Presidents have done so."

He would welcome the opportunity to work with the President and Staff on "moral and spiritual" issues. He did not say what these would be. As his specific help is sought, he would probably decide issue by issue.

On behalf of Lynda Johnson Robb I asked Dr. Graham if he would like to come out in public support for ERA. He quickly, with nervous laughter, declined, though I got the impression that he himself has no problem with the amendment.

On the Pope's visit to the White House he saw no problem if the event were handled with due regard to church/state separation.

The conservative right, fundamentalist evangelical political coalitions are a definite factor in American life. Dr. Graham urged the President to take careful note of this group.

Conclusion

He was glad I came. He was delighted to be back in touch with the President. Dinner at the White House, most any time, would please him.

Mischief by the $100s

Neat solutions to messy problems are out of fashion. But with federal tax collectors last week complaining that at least $100 billion a year may be illicitly circulating beyond reach of the tax system, why not consider an intriguing response to the problem?

Eliminate the $100 bill from the U.S. currency.

This idea, which periodically surfaces and then disappears without evoking official interest, does indeed sound cockeyed—until two concrete facts about American money are juxtaposed: The first is that the $100 bill is unusual in day-to-day transactions; most people, in fact, can't remember when they last saw one. The second is that the latest U.S. Treasury figures show that an astonishingly large—and annually increasing—proportion of U.S. money in circulation is in $100 bills.

As of June 30, a record 36.3 percent of the dollar value of our coin and currency was in $100 bills—which means that out of $105.3 billion in circulation, $38.3 billion was in these notes. (The runner-up denomination was $20s, which accounted for $36 billion; after that, it's $50s and $10s, at about $11 billion each, and so on down the money ladder. Notes over $100 are no longer being printed and account for only a small part of currency in circulation.) The $100-bill segment of our currency is not only the biggest in terms of total value; it is also, in recent years, the fastest growing, rising from 22 percent of total cash in 1971 to nearly 33.3 percent in 1977, and continuing upward since then.

What should be kept in mind about this proliferation of hundreds—apart from their out-of-sight existence—is that the boom in their production can only slightly, if at all, be attributed to the need to carry around more cash in these inflated times. With nearly 600 million credit cards in circulation, and checks accounting for some 90 percent of business and personal transactions, big currency actually plays a negligible role in our economy. Nevertheless, in total dollar amount and as a proportion of all U.S. currency, the $100s keep growing as the Bureau of Engraving pours them out in response to what banks report they need to fill their customers' cash requirements.

But who needs $100 bills, and where are these notes?

Legitimate transactions obviously account for some of this currency. And, in defiance of rudimentary economics, some of the notes have been stashed away by folks who don't trust banks or other conventional places for storing money; now and then, the death of a lonely eccentric is followed by discovery of bundles of cash.

However, the outstanding characteristic of the $100 bill is its utility as a medium of mischief, or, as Assistant Treasury Secretary Richard Davis was quoted last week in commenting on billions in big bills flowing into drug-ridden Florida, "Crime is a cash business."

Moving cash around in easily transported and negotiated amounts is a problem of organized crime, and it's also a problem for legitimate business operators who prefer to exclude the tax man from some of their transactions. (In Britain, with its thriving "off-the-books" or "black economy," there has been a similar upsurge in the demand for big notes.)

Given the fact that $100 bills play a very small role in legitimate business, and that their elimination would create an enormous nuisance for organized crime and lots of ordinary tax dodgers, why not scratch them from the currency?

A grace period of perhaps a month could be offered for turning them in, after which they'd be worthless. It could be the cheapest and most effective step in the history of law enforcement.

Memorandum to The President

You will recall my suggestion once that we should change some of our currency to smoke out organized crime, drug traffickers and tax evaders. Mike Blumenthal was cool to the idea.

I enclose a column by Daniel S. Greenberg where he makes the same point but seems to think that we could accomplish the same end by simply eliminating the $100 bill.

Biographical Sketch

Patricia F. Waller received her Ph.D. in clinical psychology from The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. She has worked as a clinical psychologist in North Carolina, Virginia, and Massachusetts. She spent two years on a postdoctoral fellowship conducting research in animal behavior at Bar Harbor, Maine. From 1962 to 1967 she taught and conducted research in the departments of psychology at The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and The University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She has also taught in the UNC School of Education.

In 1967 she joined the UNC Highway Safety Research Center where she is Associate Director for Driver Programs. She has been responsible for major efforts concerning the evaluation and upgrading of driver licensing and driver improvement programs. Working closely with State agencies, she has had primary responsibility in the following areas: the development of new written knowledge examinations for driver licensure, as well as a pictorial oral examination for applicants unable to read; the development of materials and procedures for implementing a system of classified licensing, including both motorcycles and heavy trucks; the evaluation of a driver license test waiver law whereby drivers with no convictions on their records for four years prior to renewal licensure are exempted from knowledge and road testing; the evaluations of a K-9 traffic safety curriculum and a traffic safety education curriculum for use at the high school level.

She is currently working with the State to examine the relationship between literacy and driving, a study that has potential ramifications for a number of State agencies; an evaluation of the manner in which the total system operates to convict persons of traffic offenses (it appears that there are systematic differences in who is convicted once a given offense occurs); and an examination of how State agencies, including Departments of Motor Vehicles, might coordinate their efforts to accomplish more effectively goals of mutual interest, e.g., improved health of drivers.

Working with the Federal government, she recently completed a manual for use by State legislators and State officials on ways to increase safety belt usage as well as a project concerning State road test examinations. She is currently responsible for a Federal contract to define the requirements for the licensing of operators of heavy trucks.

She chaired the recent Transportation Research Board conference to review NHTSA's five year plan for highway safety research, development and demonstration. In addition, she has been appointed associate editor of the international journal Accident Analysis and Prevention and has been named to the editorial board of the Journal of Safety Research. She is currently serving as chairman of the Human Factors Section of the American Association for Automotive Medicine.

She is also Research Professor in the Department of Health Administration of the University of North Carolina School of Public Health where her major interest is in policy and administration in the area of injury control. She is especially concerned about the implementation of research findings through legislative and administrative measures and the evaluation of such measures.
