After the President's prepared remarks, Dan Raviv of Israeli Television, will ask one follow-up question along the following lines:

Q: Mr. President, what is the truth of the continuing reports that you intend to shift your Middle East policy, if you are re-elected, to exert more pressure on Israel and take a position more sympathetic to the Palestinians?

Following are suggested talking points for the President's response:

- As I just said, there will be no change in America's ties to Israel.
- The successes we have achieved through the Camp David process have depended on the continuity of policy. There is no reason to abandon that course or switch the tactics that have already brought us so far.
- The decisions which Israel has taken in the search for peace -- and those which remain to be taken -- are among the most difficult which Israel has faced in the 32 years of its existence as a nation. I understand the agonizing nature of those choices. They go directly to the heart of Israel's security as a nation and the preservation of the independence and well-being of its people.
- True peace can only be built on a foundation of security, stability, and mutual respect among all the parties concerned.
- No one is more aware than I of the difficulties of breaking through the barriers of hostility which have existed for more than a generation.
- But it can be done. We have come further toward our goal than anyone would have dared to dream just three years ago.

We did it -- not by ignoring the needs and concerns of the parties -- but rather by a patient process of finding solutions which respected the interests of Israel and its negotiating partners.

-- No one expects it to be easy. But the one great lesson we have learned is that progress toward a comprehensive peace is possible only if we persevere and if we remain sensitive to the deepest concerns of all the parties.

-- That has been our policy. It works. It will remain our policy.

TO: THE PRESIDENT
FROM: JODY POWELL (Affair Friendly for Jody)
SUBJECT: Remarks for Israeli Television

Attached at Tab A is a draft statement for your use in the taping session set for 9:45 Monday morning in the Library of the White House with Israeli television. The statement has been cleared with the NSC, the speechwriters and Al Moses.

After you make the statement, without introduction, Dan Raviv, the Israeli TV correspondent who will be sitting with you, will ask one, pre-arranged follow-up question. Attached at Tab B are suggested talking points for your response.

If you would like the statement itself put on a teleprompter, please have Fran or Phil notify the Press Office.

I AM PLEASED TO SPEAK WITH THE PEOPLE OF ISRAEL ON THE JOYOUS OCCASION OF ROSH HASHANAH -- JEWISH NEW YEAR 5741. IT IS A TIME BOTH TO RECALL THE PAST AND TO LOOK TOWARD THE FUTURE.

ROSH HASHANAH FALLS THIS YEAR ON AN HISTORIC ANNIVERSARY. IT HAS BEEN TWO YEARS SINCE PRIME MINISTER BEGIN, PRESIDENT SADAT AND I MET AT CAMP DAVID. FOR THIRTEEN DAYS AND NIGHTS WE WORKED THERE TOGETHER, SEEKING ONE OVERRIDING OBJECTIVE: A SECURE AND LASTING PEACE IN THE MIDDLE EAST. ALL THE HOPES OF MANY GENERATIONS CAME TOGETHER AT THAT TIME. AND WE SUCCEEDED, LARGELY BECAUSE OF THE COURAGE AND VISION OF YOUR PRIME MINISTER AND OF THE PRESIDENT OF EGYPT.

THEN, FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE ISRAEL'S REBIRTH AS A MODERN STATE, PEACE CAME -- A REAL PEACE BETWEEN ISRAEL AND EGYPT. THE PEOPLE OF AMERICA JOINED OUR FRIENDS IN ISRAEL IN REJOICING.

NOW MY COUNTRY IS WORKING AS A FULL PARTNER WITH ISRAEL AND EGYPT TO COMPLETE THE PROCESS SO HOPEFULLY BEGUN AT CAMP DAVID. — ~~A FULL AND FINAL PEACE BETWEEN ISRAEL AND ALL OF ITS NEIGHBORS.~~
~~YOUR PRIME MINISTER HAS ASSURED ME THAT THIS IS SOMETHING HE~~ ~~WISHES WITH ALL OF HIS HEART.~~ FOR THE PAST SIXTEEN MONTHS, WE HAVE LABORED TOGETHER TO MAKE POSSIBLE THE NEXT GREAT STEP TOWARDS ^{our}
~~THAT~~ VITAL GOALS.

Progress may be slow.

MUCH REMAINS TO BE DONE. , YET, AS WE LEARNED AT CAMP DAVID, WE MUST NEVER RELENT. WE MUST NEVER YIELD IN THE FACE OF TEMPORARY DIFFICULTIES. WE MUST PERSEVERE, JUST AS ^{we} AMBASSADOR LINOWITZ DID

mutually arranging for

LAST WEEK IN, ~~HELPING~~ ISRAEL AND EGYPT TO RESUME THE AUTONOMY
NEGOTIATIONS.

~~PEACE CAN BE WON, PROVIDED THE WILL AND THE SPIRIT ARE THERE.~~
THE COMMITMENT OF ALL THREE PARTIES IS CLEAR; AND TO THAT I ADD
MY PERSONAL COMMITMENT: TO DO ALL THAT I CAN TO MAKE POSSIBLE
THE REALIZATION OF THE ANCIENT DREAM OF THE JEWISH PEOPLE -- SECURITY AND PEACE IN THE LAND OF YOUR FATHERS.

AS THIS NEW YEAR BEGINS, I REAFFIRM THE COMMITMENT OF THE AMERICAN NATION AND ITS GOVERNMENT TO THE INDESTRUCTIBLE TIES
OF FRIENDSHIP BETWEEN US AND THE PEOPLE OF ISRAEL. TOGETHER, WE SHARE A SPECIAL RELATIONSHIP -- A UNIQUE INDELIBLE RELATIONSHIP -- BASED ON DEEP DEVOTION TO THE SAME MORAL AND DEMOCRATIC IDEALS.
THE UNITED STATES IS NOW AND FOREVER COMMITTED TO A SECURE AND FREE ISRAEL, ~~BLESSED WITH INDEPENDENCE AND PEACE~~ -- AN ISRAEL WHOSE SECURITY AND WELL-BEING ARE FUNDAMENTAL TO OUR OWN STRATEGIC, POLITICAL, AND MORAL CONCERNS.

AND TO THIS I ADD MY OWN COMMITMENT, AS PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES. THIS WILL NOT CHANGE.

SO I JOIN YOU AT THIS NEW YEAR IN LOOKING TO A FUTURE OF HOPE AND PROMISE. MAY THIS BE THE YEAR OF THE NEXT GREAT STEPS TOWARDS A PERMANENT AND LASTING PEACE.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: BRUCE KIRSCHENBAUM BK
SUBJECT: Private Meeting with Dick Hatcher
Oval Office
9:10 a.m. (5 minutes)
Friday, September 5, 1980

Press: None

I. Purpose

Andy Young suggested to Jack Watson that you meet personally with black leaders to encourage even stronger campaign support. Andy mentioned Dick Hatcher in particular.

II. Background

Dick has not always been the strongest supporter of this Administration.

However, Dick is now quite terrified about a possible Reagan presidency and wants to go all out for your re-election.

III. Talking Points

This election is very important to blacks throughout our country as well as cities in general.

I need your support with an extra effort. You have a national reputation which can be most helpful in key states such as Illinois, Ohio, New York and the big industrial states. I would personally appreciate any time you can set aside for campaigning for the Carter-Mondale ticket.

I need people to respond to various Reagan charges quickly and you know how to do that with no real need for direction. I appreciate your help in the past and over the next two months.

By the way, it hasn't been announced yet, but Ernie Green from Labor will be taking a leave of absence to join the New York campaign during the next two months. Anything you can do to help him out in a very difficult state would be appreciated.

To meet with the Presidents of some 40 Jewish organizations that compose the major American Jewish organizations.

II. BACKGROUND, PARTICIPANTS AND PRESS

- A. Background: An invitation for you to meet with the Conference in New York was extended by Ted Mann in June. Due to scheduling and other problems, it was decided to hold it at the White House. Howard Squadron became Chairman on July 1 and has been anxious for some time to meet with you. It is suggested that you meet with Squadron for five minutes in the Oval Office before going to the Roosevelt Room. This procedure has been followed in the past when meeting with the Conference of Presidents.

TALKING POINTS FOR THE PRESIDENT'S MEETING WITH THE CONFERENCE OF PRESIDENTS' OF MAJOR AMERICAN JEWISH ORGANIZATIONS

I appreciate your inviting me to meet with you in New York. I would like to have done this but rather than wait until my trip to New York in October, I suggested a meeting here at the White House. You were gracious to come.

When I met with you in 1976, one of your leaders took me aside to tell me that he hoped to see me again in four years, I expressed the same hope to him. I see he is here today so both of our wishes have come true.

I understand that you had breakfast at Vice President Mondale's home. Fritz tells me that he serves only Norwegian kippers at his home. Like Senator Humphrey, the Vice President has been very close to the Jewish community throughout his public life. We work closely on all issues, including Israel.

I know you are interested in a great number of matters in addition to Israel, but because the peace and security of Israel are important to you and important to me, I thought I would start first with Israel.

My Administration's commitment to the peace and security of Israel is not a matter of political expediency, but reflects my own convictions -- both as President and as a person -- the interests we share in common with Israel form the basis of a firm link between our two countries which will not be broken.

My Administration has provided approximately one-half of the aid -- both military and economic -- that Israel has received in the last 32 years. Previous Administrations used economic and military aid as a lever to affect Israeli policy. I have not done this. Over the last several years Israel has been more dependent on the U.S. than ever, particularly in the economic field. (The Israeli balance of payments has now improved despite the high inflation rate.) I knew that our economic aid was critical to Israel but I never threatened to slow down or stop economic aid, nor did I ever threaten to slow down or stop military aid -- and as long as I am President I never will.

Our role is that of a full partner with Egypt and Israel in a common search for peace. We have not dictated terms to Israel and we never shall. This would be an affront both to Israel's democratic process and to my personal belief of what is right and proper in relations between friendly governments. We may disagree with the government of Israel from time to time. This is to be expected. It has happened many times over the 32 years of Israel's existence. We have disagreements with other allies, but it doesn't affect the basic relationship between our countries. The same thing is true concerning Israel.

I might also mention that when I was elected President this country was facing an Arab boycott which sought to tell American business people where they could do business and with whom. This is not a political meeting. Some of you may be supporting other candidates, but the fact is that my predecessor and two of the leading members of his Cabinet, Simon and Kissinger, blocked efforts to pass effective legislation to combat the arab Boycott.

When I became President, we worked with the Congress and with American Jewish leaders -- and some business people as well -- to put on the books effective legislation. Many people in the business community and even some politicians said we should not do it -- that it would affect our relations with Saudi Arabia and other Arab nations. I did not buy this proposition then and I do not subscribe to it now. I shall always do what is right and proper in the interest of our country and in the interest of justice and I shall let the political consequences take care of themselves. This legislation is now being effectively administered by the Commerce Department under Phil Klutznick's direction.

Turning to the domestic scene -- we have to look realistically at the problems of our cities. Irresponsible tax deductions will only add to inflation and make far worse the problems of our urban areas. We are only now beginning to see the benefit of this Administration's urban policy. Our urban areas are being rebuilt -- not as quickly as I would like -- but progress is evident in most of our major cities. These cities have served as the cultural and intellectual centers of our nation and their vitality is important -- even critical -- to the future well-being of our nation. The economic renewal plan I recently announced targets urban areas for various forms of governmental assistance and as tax credits, constant rate depreciation and special incentives for private investment.

We are making progress in reducing our dependence on imported oil. Since 1977 we have reduced our average daily import of oil from 8.5 million barrels to 6.5 million barrels and under the Comprehensive Energy Program, which we now have in place, we will reduce that amount even more over the next decade -- reducing by 50% the amount of oil we imported in 1977. I need not tell you what this means for our country. It will remove the threat of oil embargoes and other forms of political coercion which some OPEC nations might be tempted to try. I can think of nothing more important, not only for our country, but also for Israel.

We have also made progress over the past 3½ years on human rights. Last year about 50,000 Soviet Jews emigrated to this country and Israel. This was the largest number ever. I am deeply disturbed about the sharp reduction in the number of Jews the Soviets are allowing to leave at the present time. Last month (August) the figure of new arrivals in Vienna was below 1,000. Our relations with the Soviet Union have, as you know, been affected by the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

But this will not lessen our efforts. We shall continue to use whatever influence we have to aid the cause of Soviet Jewry. I stated this publicly here at the White House in connection with the forthcoming Madrid meetings under the Helsinki Accords. And I have instructed our delegation in Madrid to present this issue as forcefully as possible.

We are doing everything we can to help facilitate entry into the U.S. for Iranian Jews. This is not a program we like to talk about publicly for obvious reasons. There are some 40,000 Jews remaining in Iran. Our Consular Officers in Europe have been instructed to process visa applications for Jews and other Iranian minorities under the humanitarian provisions of my Executive Order barring Iranian nationals from entering the U.S. In recent weeks we have gone even further. In those cases where visas cannot be lawfully issued by our Consular Officers, the Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) of the Department of Justice is granting humanitarian paroles on an individual basis.

I don't want to do all the talking. I want to hear from you. But there is another matter that is important to me and if you'll permit me to take just another minute or so of your time, I would like to mention it.

The strength of our nation lies in its diversity -- diversity of religions and cultures. Each of us takes pride in one or more of these parts and, as Americans, we take pride in the sum of these parts -- the mosaic that makes our country so beautiful. This is something that I have tried to enrich and preserve. I have tried as President to reach out to all the parts of that mosaic, for I believe, and I feel you believe, that the pride we feel in our separate traditions and our tolerance for the traditions of others are as distinctly American as the flag we salute and the pledge to which we give allegiance.

Q: MR. PRESIDENT. On August 20 in the Security Council, the U.S. abstained rather than voting "no" on a Resolution that called on all members to move their embassies from Jerusalem. Some persons have commented that this represents a change in our government's position on Jerusalem, and indicates that we no longer recognize Israeli sovereignty over even West Jerusalem.

A: Senator Muskie in his statement made it very clear that we considered this portion of the Resolution to be without force and not binding. He also said that we reject it. Secretary Muskie made it clear that our government would not allow the Security Council to impose sanctions against Israel. If the Security Council's action had been binding on members we would have vetoed it.

As for our position on Jerusalem, this has not changed. I do not want to get into questions of sovereignty and other legal terms. Our position is that Jerusalem should remain undivided and that there should be free access to the holy places for persons of all faiths.

The ultimate status of Jerusalem will be the subject of future negotiations. We have consistently called on all parties to refrain from taking any actions that will make the resolution of this issue more difficult, or will lessen the likelihood of a peaceful solution to the problem of the Middle East. I recognize the strong feelings that exist on this subject in Israel, and in the Jewish community in our country. I share these feelings, but during a period of negotiations, it is important that the concerned parties act in a constructive way.

Q: MR. PRESIDENT. Why are we selling advanced aircraft to Saudi Arabia and tanks to Jordan when both of these countries have joined the Arab world in rejecting the Camp David Accords. It seems to me we should be telling King Hussein to start negotiating with the Israelis and then we will sell Jordan the 100 tanks the King wants to buy from us. What is your comment?

A: Our sales of military equipment to Saudi Arabia and Jordan reflect long term commitments that were undertaken prior to this Administration. For example, we agreed, in 1975, to help the Jordanians modernize their tank force. The Jordanian tanks were to be retrofitted in Iran. After the Shah fell this was no longer possible and we agreed to sell 100 of our M-60 tanks in place of the retrofitted tanks we had earlier agreed to sell. It is not a question of selling tanks to the Jordanians or their doing without them. The Jordanians can buy a very good tank from the British who are eager to do business with Jordan.

Although the Jordanians have not joined in the negotiations with Egypt and Israel, King Hussein has been helpful in other areas. I do not want to go into details but the Jordanians have been helpful in South Yemen, for example, and there are other areas where we have common interests.

As for the Saudis, I believe the first delivery of plan^es will be in the fourth quarter of next year. Again this was not a question of our being the only supplier of planes.

The French make a very good plane (Mirage) the Saudis are interested in. We think it is much better that we sell American planes to the Saudis rather than have them buy French planes. It does affect our influence with the Saudis and, as you know, the planes we sold have limited offensive capability. If the Saudis had bought French planes there would have been no such limitations.

Q: MR. PRESIDENT. There have been a number of news reports that the Administration is planning to sell additional equipment to the Saudis for the F-15s that would greatly increase their military capability, particularly their offensive capability. Additional fuel tanks and bomb racks have been mentioned along with other items of equipment. The news reports indicated that the Administration is planning to sell this equipment to the Saudis after the election in November. Is there any truth to these reports.

A: We have made absolutely no commitments to the Saudis and we have not even considered any Saudi requests for additional equipment. When Secretary Brown testified before the Senate in 1978 in connection with the Saudi plane sales, he assured the Senate that there would be prior consultations with the Senate before any commitments would be made for the sale of add-on equipment. No such consultations are now contemplated and no active consideration is being given to any pending Saudi request in this regard.

Q: MR. PRESIDENT. Why is your Administration permitting the sale by General Electric of engine cores for Iraqi frigates when the Iraqis continue to support terrorism around the world.

A: These engines are being sold to an Italian company that is actually the seller of the frigates. At the time the licenses were granted for these engines the regulations under the Export Administration Act did not cover dual purpose items such as engine cores. These regulations have since been changed. As you may know the State Department recently recommended to the Commerce Department that it not grant a license to Boeing to sell 727s and other civilian aircraft to Iraq citing Iraq's support of terrorism.

Incidentally the frigates will be used in the Persian Gulf and do not effect the military balance between Israel and her Arab neighbors.

Question: MR. PRESIDENT. Why is your Administration permitting the sale by General Electric of engine cores for Iraqi frigates when the Iraqis continue to support terrorism around the world.

Answer: These engines are being sold to an Italian company that is actually the seller of the frigates. At the time the licenses were granted for these engines the regulations under the Export Administration Act did not cover dual purpose items such as engine cores. These regulations have since been changed. As you may know the State Department recently recommended to the Commerce Department that it not grant a license to Boeing to sell 727s and other civilian aircraft to Iraq citing Iraq's support of terrorism.

Incidentally the frigates will be used in the Persian Gulf and do not effect the military balance between Israel and her Arab neighbors.

Q: MR. PRESIDENT. I know the Israelis are concerned about reports that the Iraqis have entered into an agreement with the French for a nuclear power plant that will use highly energized core loadings that could be diverted for use in making weapons. Is there anything we can do about this potentially dangerous situation.

A: We are very much aware of the problem. We understand that the French have taken rigorous precautions to ensure that these core loadings cannot be diverted for use in making weapons. The French Government recently made a public statement in this regard. I share your concern and without going into details I can assure you that this is a matter which is receiving our attention.

Q: MR. PRESIDENT. You referred to a drop in oil imports from 8.5 million barrels per day to 6.5 million barrels per day, or a decrease of 24%. John Anderson has been telling audiences that this decrease is due largely to the recession and the decreased demand for oil that has resulted from the downturn in our economy; isn't this the real reason for the decrease in oil imports?

A: No it isn't. The major reason for the decrease is a reduction in energy consumption per unit of production. This is not effected by swings in the economy. A good way for you to measure this is to look at the recession in 1974 and 1975 and compare the oil figures for that period with the current figures which show a more mild downturn in the economy but a very sharp decrease in oil imports.

MEMORANDUM FOR: THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: Enrolled Bill S. 2680 - Omnibus
National Park System Authorizations

THE BILL

S. 2680 provides numerous authorities affecting the National Park System, which we summarized in the attached OMB memorandum.

VOTES IN CONGRESS

Voice vote in both Houses.

AGENCY AND STAFF RECOMMENDATIONS

We recommend approval. NASA, Transportation, Treasury, and Agriculture have no objection.

Interior notes that although the expansion of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area is not justified because the lands are not nationally significant, it does not feel this provision is sufficiently objectionable to disapprove the entire bill and recommends approval.

agree { OMB also cites concern with this provision as well as with Federal support for the Folger Library and Corcoran Gallery. OMB feels these private entities should compete for Federal assistance through programs such as the National Endowment for the Humanities or the Department of Education. In addition, OMB feels the Lowell Historic Preservation Commission should not be permitted to retain revenues, but should continue to deposit its receipts in the Treasury. On balance, however, OMB does not feel these objections are sufficient to warrant veto and also recommends approval.

No Senior Staff objections have been raised.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: GENE EIDENBERG Gene
JOHN WHITE JW

SUBJECT: Cuban/Haitian Report

Background

Since mid-April, approximately 120,000 Cubans and 5,000 Haitians have entered South Florida. Most have remained there. About 15,000 Cubans are in four processing centers, to be consolidated at Ft. Chaffee, Arkansas, by mid-October. Another 2,000 Cubans with serious criminal histories are in various federal detention centers around the country; 1,000 Haitians are staying at a former Nike missile site south of Miami; and another 1,000 Cubans, whose sponsorships have broken down, are at a tent encampment in Miami.

We have succeeded in resettling over 100,000 Cubans and 4,000 Haitians. The total costs thus far are approaching $400 million, mostly for enforcement, processing, camp operations, and resettlement in local communities. The flow continues (about 800 per week), and the level of tension in Dade County is very high. You have already seen a separate memorandum on the options available to help stem this continuing illegal immigration. This memorandum identifies several immediate concerns in dealing with those refugees already here, and describes our current legislative efforts to deal with them.

Funding

The most frequent complaint from Florida officials is that they have not received adequate federal financial relief for the care of these Cuban and Haitian arrivals. About $30 million for initial health, education, and social services grants has been appropriated (not all of it has been obligated to date). Authorization for retroactive reimbursements for 75% of State and local welfare costs during the first year after release from Federal custody, and for special educational and social services grants, is included in your proposed special

Can't we move them?
bad

legislation which gives pre-June 19 arrivals "Cuban/Haitian Entrant" status under our immigration laws. This level is lower than what is provided for Indochinese and other refugees. The legislation has been introduced in Congress, but no action has occurred.

Despite these actions, the perception, aided by a negative Miami press, that we have "dumped" this problem on the taxpayers of Florida is widespread.

Stack Bill

We have supported compromise legislative language proposed by Representative Dante Fascell so that up to $100 million can be made available now, at your discretion, for welfare costs, and health and social services needs for this population. That money was appropriated but is contingent upon passage of an authorization. Fascell's original language was included in the Foreign Aid Authorization bill, which is now not expected to be enacted for at least several months. The only immediate vehicle for the Fascell language is legislation sponsored by Representative Stack from Broward County in Florida. Stack, who has been your strong supporter and who faces a tough re-election campaign, has sponsored new impact aid type legislation to pay basic and special educational costs for Cuban and Haitian children and adults.

Estimates of the number of students who will be entering school this month range between 15 and 30 thousand (House Committee--low; CBO--high). About 10 thousand of these will likely be in Dade County alone. The cost of the Stack bill over the 1981 - 1983 period range from about $90 million (House Committee) to $125 million (CBO).

Stack secured active support from Congressman George Miller, and obtained House passage of his bill, by including a substantial increase in aid for Indochinese refugees. The Senate Human Resources Committee will make up Stack's bill on September 9; we expect them to add a section authorizing Fascell's $100 million contingent appropriation and providing authority to transfer processing center operations from FEMA to the Cuban/Haitian Task Force.

The most troublesome feature of the Stack bill is that, for the first time, it would authorize Federal payments for basic per pupil local educational costs for an immigrant group. This could become a far-reaching and costly precedent for special payments on behalf of Mexican children and other illegal aliens.

Do something about this

We are attempting to get the Stack bill language amended so that it is acceptable to us, by inserting a threshold for the payment of basic education entitlement costs, or by deleting the program. We can accept the authorizations for special local education costs and for adult programs. If necessary, we would support his legislation intact in order to obtain the Fascell language and the Cuban/Haitian Task Force authority. We can assert that unique circumstances led to our support of Stack, and still maintain our continuing efforts to reform Impact Aid and to restrain new categorical grant programs. Secretary Hufstедler can support this position.

If we can get action before Congress adjourns or recesses for the election campaign, this will substantially relieve us of criticism in Florida.

Sites

I agree

We have been strongly criticized for conditions at two refugee sites -- "Tent City," where 1,000 Cubans with broken sponsorships are living under a Miami freeway; and Krome South, a former missile site, where 1,000 Haitians are being held pending resettlement. "Tent City" is a public eyesore whose presence exacerbates community tensions because many of its inhabitants are "hardcore," difficult to train and employ. Krome South is severely overcrowded. The lack of sewer, water, housing, and recreational facilities make it a significant public health hazard. Pat Harris and Vic Palmieri have stated in the strongest terms that we are vulnerable to charges of human rights violations there.

We have worked out a plan with Governor Graham which he will support if we support the Stack/Fascell legislation (see above). Both "Tent City" and Krome South will be closed within 30 days. The Cubans will be resettled, many outside the Miami area. Most of the Haitians will also be resettled, but some will be taken to another site near Krome South until they can be resettled.

Operations

The management of this extraordinary situation will be aided if your Coordinator for Refugee Affairs is given a clear Presidential mandate to do so. I, of course, will continue to maintain an oversight of this entire operation for the White House.

I recommend that you sign the attached memorandum.

MEMORANDUM FOR

THE PRESIDENT

FROM:

STU EIZENSTAT Stu
TOM LAMBRIX

SUBJECT:

Enrolled Bill H.R. 5892 - Wind Energy Systems
Act of 1980

THE BILL

H.R. 5892 establishes an 8-year wind energy research, development and demonstration program within the Department of Energy. The purpose of this program is to maximize the contribution of wind energy to the nation's future energy supply. The bill establishes two national goals:

- o A reduction in the average cost of electricity produced by wind energy systems to a level competitive with conventional sources.
- o A total U.S. capacity of at least 800 megawatts from small wind energy systems.

To achieve these goals, H.R. 5892 requires the Secretary of Energy to implement the following programs:

(1) A Comprehensive Wind Energy Systems Program Management Plan

The plan must include provisions for a 5-year program for small wind energy systems and an 8-year program for large wind energy systems. (A small wind energy system is one with a capacity of 100 kilowatts or less.) The plan is to be submitted to Congress within 9 months of enactment. In order to fulfill the plan's requirements, the Secretary is authorized to enter into contracts with and make grants to public and private entities for the development and demonstration of prototype advanced wind energy systems.

(2) A Technology Applications Program

This program is designed to reduce the unit cost of wind energy systems through mass production, operation and maintenance of various systems. The Secretary is authorized to use contracts, grants, and loans with public and private entities and to provide funds to other Federal agencies for the procurement and installation of large and small wind systems.

Grants are authorized for large wind systems only and for FY 81-86 are up to 50 percent Federal matching, and for FY 87-88 are up to 25 percent Federal matching. Loans for small and large wind systems are authorized for up to 75 percent of purchase and installation costs. Termination of the small wind energy program is required by September 1985 and the large wind energy program by September 1988. Both can be terminated sooner if the systems become economically competitive.

(3) A National Wind Resource Assessment Program

H.R. 5892 directs the Secretary to initiate a 3-year resource assessment program to include a validation of known wind assessments, a wind site prospecting program, and an establishment of a wind data information center.

(4) A Study of Potential Future Uses of Wind Energy

The Secretary is required to report to Congress on the potential for using wind systems on Federal facilities; the need for further Federal incentives for wind systems development; the results of evaluating the performance of wind systems in residential, agricultural, industrial, commercial, and utility sectors; and the prospects for using wind systems in foreign countries, particularly in LDCs.

The bill authorizes a total of $100 million in FY 81 appropriations.

VOTES IN CONGRESS

Voice vote in both Houses.

ARGUMENTS FOR SIGNING

- o The Administration has worked hard with the Congress on legislation to promote the development of wind energy. Because of our negotiations, H.R. 5892 is substantially improved over the introduced version. For example, grants for the purchase of small wind systems have been deleted in view of the recent enactment of a 40% tax credit for residential application of small systems. Also, the termination requirements and the discretionary nature of the bill's other potentially objectionable provisions provide sufficient flexibility to ensure the implementation of a cost-effective and productive program.

- o This is a popular program with broad support and is a component of your overall solar energy policy announced in June 1979. Development of wind energy systems, as laid out in this bill, will significantly enhance the contribution of wind energy towards your 20 percent solar and renewable goal by 2000.

ARGUMENTS FOR VETO

- Administer
Conservatively*
- o H.R. 5892 contains authorities not sought by the Administration which may result in pressures for increased funding of existing DOE wind programs and/or for other new programs. The $100 million authorized is also $20 million higher than your FY 81 appropriation request (although pending appropriations in Congress are identical to your request).
 - o Treasury advises that the bill does not conform with existing Federal credit policies and that the bill could result in Federal guarantees of state and local tax-exempt obligations.

AGENCY AND STAFF RECOMMENDATIONS

Energy, Defense, Agriculture, Interior, Transportation, CEQ and we recommend approval. NASA, OSTP, GSA, State, Commerce and EPA have no objection.

OMB also recommends approval but cites concerns with the provision for Federal procurement of wind systems. OMB believes that this provision, if prematurely implemented, could result in overstimulating production of early model machines without proper regard to cost minimization, competition, or adequate testing. OMB notes, however, that the discretionary aspect of the Federal procurement program provides enough flexibility so that OMB can work with DOE during budget review to ensure that a premature commitment to a costly Federal procurement program is avoided.

Treasury recommends veto because the financing provisions of the bill do not conform to existing policy. We believe, however, that this issue is not sufficiently objectionable to warrant veto when compared to the bill's other desirable authorities. In addition, OMB indicates that Treasury's concerns over Federal credit policies can be adequately addressed when DOE promulgates regulations. OMB will work with DOE toward this end.

This bill has had the strong support of Senator Matsunaga and Congressman Mineta.

Attached is a signing statement that we recommend you approve which thanks Senator Matsunaga and Congressman Mineta for their efforts on behalf of this program and also notes the discretionary financing aspects of the bill.

DECISION

_____ Sign H.R. 5892 with Statement

_____ Sign H.R. 5892 without Statement

_____ Veto H.R. 5892

STATEMENT BY THE PRESIDENT

I have today signed H.R. 5892, the "Wind Energy Systems Act of 1980," a bill authorizing a wind energy research, development, and demonstration program. The bill's purpose is to accelerate the widespread utilization of wind energy, which can play an important role in reaching the national goal I set last year of providing 20 percent of U.S. energy needs from solar and renewable sources by the year 2000. Senators Jackson, ^{and} Matsunaga, ~~and Durkin, and~~ Congressmen Mineta and Fuqua and the numerous sponsors of this legislation are to be commended for their foresight in obtaining the enactment of H.R. 5892.

H.R. 5892 establishes specific objectives for windpowered electric generating capacity and wind systems costs by 1988 and authorizes financial assistance, including Federal procurements of wind energy systems, to help achieve these ends. The bill also wisely permits discretion in selecting the types of financial assistance best suited to promoting the Act's objectives. The Department of Energy will exercise this discretion to promote wind energy systems that are commercially viable and economically competitive. The Department will also seek significant cost-sharing from the private sector in order to reduce wind energy systems costs and to improve the prospects for commercialization.

My approval of H.R. 5892, along with my recent approval of tax credits for wind energy systems, clearly demonstrates this Administration's continued commitment to renewable energy resources. The programs established by H.R. 5892 can make an important contribution to the Administration's ongoing wind energy program, and it is with pleasure that I sign this bill into law.

INFORMATION (Continued on back if necessary)

Dan Rostenkowski actively supported the Eckhardt amendment which gutted the rail deregulation bill reported from committee. His opposition was especially harmful in light of his influence as a member of the leadership and the Illinois delegation. Rostenkowski's primary problem has been Commonwealth Edison, a utility in his district that along with other utilities remains opposed to the new compromise. Yesterday Secretary Duncan wrote to Chairman Staggers endorsing the compromise as consistent with our national energy policy.

TALKING POINTS

1. I am calling to ask for your support of the Staggers-Rahall compromise to the rail deregulation bill. This compromise provides much greater protection for shippers than the original bill reported from committee, but also offers the railroads significant regulatory reform.
2. Bob Eckhardt, who has opposed the bill's provisions, is still not satisfied with this compromise. However, his key ally in offering the weakening amendment to the bill which narrowly carried in July, Congressman Nick Rahall, is strongly supporting this new compromise.
3. Most of the utilities are still not on board the Staggers-Rahall compromise. However, compromise is a two-way street, and this new amendment meets the key demands originally made by the utilities. In addition to the railroads and the AFL-CIO, the Staggers-Rahall compromise is now being supported by a very wide range of shippers including coal, steel, car, retail, and chemical companies, as well as the American Farm Bureau. It also has the support of environmental groups and the Interstate Commerce Commission.
4. This bill is vitally important to the country's transportation system and the economy, and is very important to me personally. I hope you will be able to support the Staggers-Rahall compromise and oppose other significant amendments, and talk to other members of the Illinois delegation about supporting the compromise as well. If you feel you cannot support the compromise, I hope it will be possible for you not to actively oppose it.

John Brademas actively worked in support of the Eckhardt amendment which gutted the rail deregulation bill reported from committee. We are hoping that he will be able to support the Staggers-Rahall compromise since it gives so much more protection to shippers than the original bill. Brademas asked Stu Eizenstat and his staff to talk to Franklin Schurz, publisher of the South Bend Tribune and a Chamber of Commerce leader in South Bend about the new compromise. Schurz had opposed the bill reported from committee. Steve Simmons of Stu's staff did speak with Schurz and Schurz told him that the compromise resolves the concerns he had about the bill reported from committee and that he would not oppose this compromise. He had not seen it in writing, and thus he could not say he specifically endorsed it at this point, but he appeared very supportive. At Brademas' request, Simmons also spoke to Miles Laboratories in South Bend, and the traffic expert from Miles is flying to Washington to meet with Administration staff this afternoon and discuss the new compromise. He was not willing to take a position until he reviewed the details. Brademas is the key to bringing the Indiana delegation in support of the compromise, and he is also critically important because of his leadership position. Even if he cannot support the Staggers-Rahall compromise, we are hoping that he will not actively oppose it.

TALKING POINTS

1. I am calling to ask for your support of the Staggers-Rahall compromise which will be offered to the rail deregulation bill, and I hope that you will be able to oppose other significant amendments.
2. I know you have been concerned that the rail deregulation bill reported from committee gave too much rate freedom to the railroads. Although Congressman Bob Eckhardt is still not satisfied with the compromise that has been worked out, Nick Rahall was the key co-sponsor of the Eckhardt amendment which carried in July, and he is generally supporting the Staggers-Rahall compromise. The compromise moves a long way from the bill reported from committee, and provides significant protection for shippers.
3. Although utilities are not yet supporting the compromise, a wide array of shippers are, including coal, chemical, paper, and car companies, and the American Farm Bureau. The AFL-CIO and the railroads also strongly support this new compromise.
4. I know you have spoken to Stu Eizenstat about this yesterday, and at your suggestion Stu and his staff spoke with Franklin Schurz of the South Bend Tribune. Schurz told us that this new compromise appears to meet all of the concerns he had with the bill originally reported from committee, and that he does not oppose it. Stu's staff also spoke with the traffic expert from Miles Laboratories, and although he would not state an opinion until he saw the exact language, he is flying in to meet with the staff later this afternoon here in Washington.
5. This bill is vitally important to the country's transportation needs and the economy, and it is very important to me personally. I hope you will be able to support the Staggers-Rahall compromise, and ask other members of the Indiana delegation to support it as well. If you feel you must oppose, I hope you will not be active in opposition.
