MEMORANDUM

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

MEMORANDUM FOR: THE PRESIDENT
FROM: ZBIGNIEW BRZEZINSKI
SUBJECT: US-China Grain Agreement (S)

October 3, 1980

Last May, the Chinese expressed interest in negotiating a bilateral grain agreement. Before we could initiate discussions, the news leaked, and the Chinese withdrew their offer. Recently, USDA renewed contacts with the Chinese, and we now have the outlines of an agreement which we hope to sign in Beijing next week. (S)

The agreement will call for the Chinese to purchase between 6 and 8 million metric tons (MMT) of wheat and corn each calendar year for a four-year period (1981-84). The Chinese believe that this amount is "realistic" and reflective of their probable demand for US grain. A higher level would obviously have greater public impact here, but it would create problems with Canada and Australia, who are traditional suppliers to China, and set a precedent for any future negotiations with the Soviets on grain. We plan to accept the 6-8 MMT band. (S)

We expect that the Chinese will accept a condition calling for prior mutual agreement if China desires to purchase less than 6 MMT or more than 8 MMT. We will make clear in our public announcements that we intend to approve purchases above 8 MMT and that the agreement is not designed to restrict sales to the PRC. (S)

A grain agreement will benefit both sides. The Chinese want one because of the certainty it provides in the planning process. An agreement is in our interest because it will: (1) add another element to our expanding bilateral relationship; (2) guarantee us a substantial share of a new and growing market for imported grain; (3) facilitate policy planning on such domestic farm issues as acreage set-asides and loan support levels; and (4) deflect criticism about the grain embargo. (S)

There are some drawbacks as well: (1) Any disparities in the buyer's favor between the US-China and US-Soviet agreements will likely become a precedent for Soviet demands in any renegotiation of the latter. We can minimize this problem by concluding an agreement similar to the US-USSR arrangement. (2) A US-China agreement will intensify producer pressure on the Canadian and Australian governments to declare an end to their cooperation in the partial grain embargo against the USSR. This danger will be substantially less if we stay in the 6-8 MMT range. We would have preferred to consult with these governments in advance, but did not do so for fear of leaks. A call or personal message to Trudeau and Fraser before any public announcement will help to avert adverse government reaction in Canada and Australia. I will furnish talking points for such calls (or proposed messages for transmittal by cable) when we are ready to initial the agreement. (S)

The Chinese have moved more rapidly toward an agreement than we anticipated. State and USDA have sent a small team to Beijing this week, and they expect to have an agreement ready for signature by October 6. If they are successful, you might consider making the announcement personally on October 7 or 8. Until an agreement is concluded, however, we are holding this information close because any premature public discussion would almost certainly cause the Chinese to withdraw from the negotiations. (S)

Dear Mr. President:

I appreciate the invitation to ride to the airport with you today. The time of our visit will be short. Since you properly must view our interchange on a cost effective basis - it might be helpful if I put my thoughts in writing.

At this point in your campaign,

1. May I respectfully suggest that I believe you need to do a powerful lot of convincing that your administration has more to offer many of my friends who will vote for Anderson - if they see his ratings increase to the point where they believe they will not be throwing away their vote by supporting him. I can tell you that many of my friends and associates in Milwaukee and around the country are in this category.

2. I believe you need to convince many "undecideds" that you have more to offer in terms of leadership, policies, sense of direction, statesmanship, etc., than Ronald Reagan.

I believe you are concentrating on trying to attract suburbanites who are the swing voters. I am a suburbanite. I want constructive answers -- not attacks on opposing candidates. I want to have a well designed blueprint of the future from the candidate I support. I must say that promises, unrelated to how they will be met, turn me off. Talk to us as intelligent, thinking, concerned citizens who are looking for meaningful answers. We are tired of the rhetoric.

1. Talk to them in constructive terms - don't play down Anderson as a media creation. Don't constantly attack and spend big media dollars by trying to show Reagan as a poor administrator in California - a trigger happy person, a racist. Frankly, I'm unconvinced by your party's ads on Reagan's administration as Governor of California. I react the same to his ads showing all that he accomplished. Neither portrayal is convincing. Figures can be used in different ways.

2. Show how you will beat inflation which is U.S. Public Enemy #1. How will you, in specific terms, bring the inflation rate down to 5% without massive unemployment in the next few years? If this can be done, give us your plan and timetables.

3. Show how you will balance the federal budget - for the next 4 years. We were promised a balanced budget for the fiscal year just starting -- but that doesn't seem possible. Spell out what you will recommend to balance the federal budget over the next 4 years. Reagan's proposals are not believable. Present yours in a believable and pragmatic manner and you will win over a good share of the target group.

4. Spell out in specific terms how you will reduce unemployment during the next 4 years. Being intimately involved with employment as President of Manpower, Inc. over 30 years, I question your TV commercials which promise "millions and millions of jobs" in the future. Spell out the "How to". I've discussed the jobs problem with Stu Eizenstat, Anne Wexler and Bill Spring. I'll be glad to provide some new ideas to you.

5. Pound away on the reindustrialization of America. You are on the right track. Show the average American what this will mean in answering his questions, "What's in it for me?" "How will my job be more secure?" -- "How will I have increased job opportunities?"

6. Show how your plans will provide for more housing. Millions of Americans want to buy homes at under 10% rates of interest. There must be ways for our government to assist in a massive plan of this type.

7. Tell us your strategy to regain the confidence and trust of our allies over the next 4 years. Reagan is scoring on this without telling how he will accomplish this goal. What are your plans?

8. Show how our defenses are not as weak as portrayed - if that is the case. Outline how you will place all of our military on a "constant ready" basis. Why shouldn't it be now?

9. Provide a new approach to dealing with the Russians which will give comfort and the needed assurances to Americans over the next 4 years. The target group defined above knows there are no simple answers to the problem. They know that saber rattling and threats are not the solution leading to peaceful coexistence with the Russians. What is your plan?

10. On the Mideast, keep stressing negotiations under the Camp David accords. I agree with Sol Linowitz when he says "that's the only game in town." As an American, Jew, I salute you on bringing about the Camp David agreement. Continue to show how important these agreements are to producing peace in the Mideast.

11. Don't consider American Jews as "one-issue" (their interest in. Israel) people. While we have an intense interest in the survival and development of Israel, we have the same interests as other Americans in reducing inflation and unemployment. We want fiscal restraints.
We stand for human rights and civil rights. You properly stressed this point in your B'nai B'rith speech. As Past President of the American Jewish Committee, I can tell you that our large national constituency believes that America's best interests are served by our members' participation in all activities relating to human and civil rights . . . including our support for Israel.
Talk to us not just of Israel but our total concerns as Americans.
I believe if you give serious thought to the implementation of some of these ideas and suggestions, you will win over a large number of those "considering Anderson if viable" and those "leaning towards Reagan."

I will be glad to amplify any of these suggestions.

I wish you well.

Very truly yours,

Elmer L. Winter

MEMORANDUM FOR JODY POWELL

FROM: Al McDonald

SUBJECT: Presidential Speeches:
         State Visit of President Shehu Shagari of Nigeria
         • Arrival statement
         • Dinner toast

         Scheduled delivery: Tue, Oct 7

Attached are copies of the President's speeches for this state visit. Please give your comments to Achsah Nesmith (x6487) by 2 p.m. tomorrow (Friday).

Mr. President,

I did not try to do much editing on this as I am not familiar with the nuances of the relationship.

ESP
Arrival Statement for President Shagari

President Shagari, members of your delegation:

On behalf of my government and my fellow citizens,

I am privileged and honored to welcome you to the White House on what we hope is only the first of many visits to the United States.

I welcome you as the freely-elected leader of one of the largest democracies in the world with long experience in government, as the spokesman of a critically important nation in terms of trade, of leadership on the African continent and as a voice for human rights and peace within the community of nations.

I welcome you also as a teacher, a historian and a farmer from another great ground nut growing region of... the world. (But let me warn you, Mr. President, that if you go to a football game in this country, and want a bag of roasted ground nuts, you will have to ask for peanuts. For that matter, if you want to go to what you call a football game, you will have to ask for soccer.)

I resolved when I took office that American foreign policy would not revolve around some Big Four or Big Six nations, but would be based on the realities of a world in which there are more than 150 nations. I was determined that our foreign policy would be responsive to the rights and needs and legitimate aspirations of all of those nations.

Early in my Presidency, I was proud to be the first American President to make an official state visit to an African nation. I cherish warm memories of the welcome that the people of Nigeria gave me on that visit in 1978.

In one sense this moment marks a new stage in the relationship of our two countries, and of our administrations, for it is your first visit to the White House, and comes during your first visit to the United States as Nigeria's President. Indeed, I understand that this is your first official visit outside of Africa, and we are very pleased that you have chosen the United States for that purpose.

In a deeper sense, however, this is not a departure or change in our relationship, which has been for some time now one of great cordiality, cooperation, and effective consultation. Our relations are based on shared values and on a shared commitment to freedom, democracy, and human dignity.

Nigeria and the United States stood firm together for majority rule in Zimbabwe. Despite strong pressures, the United States continued to maintain sanctions against Rhodesia until democratic elections could be held.

We continue to stand for peace and for majority rule in southern Africa, and support the negotiations on Namibia under United Nations auspices as the best hope for a just and peaceful settlement there.

We support your efforts, and those of other nations in the Organization of African Unity, to secure negotiated settlements to other conflicts on the continent.

America supports the goals of freedom from the tragic waste of war, freedom from outside domination and military intervention in Africa.

Americans have welcomed the return of democratic government in Nigeria, Chad and Upper Volta and the movement of other nations in that direction. We believe that democracy provides not only the greatest potential happiness and fulfillment for individuals, but also the greatest potential for long-term economic development.

I am looking forward to spending this morning with you, for those of my government who have had the opportunity to meet and speak with you have told me how much they enjoyed, and learned from, the encounter. I hope, as I said earlier, that you will return frequently to the United States.

Toast to President Shehu Shagari

Your Excellency, honored guests:

I am honored to be able to entertain you here in the White House in a small return gesture for the hospitality you and your countrymen provided Vice President Mondale and his party in Lagos this July, and that your people so generously showed me when they so warmly welcomed me to Nigeria in 1978.

That visit reflected the emerging significance of the continent of Africa and, in particular, the growing importance of Nigeria in world affairs.

You, Sir, bring to your post broad government experience in the fields of finance and economic development as well as long personal experience in two areas vital to the future of any country -- coaxing the land to be fruitful and the young to learn.
Despite superficial differences in our two countries, we share with each other these fundamental problems of how best to bring about economic development, how to provide the food and fiber our people need, how to educate our children.

Energy is a vital link between our two nations. Nigeria's petroleum sales to the United States are important because they are substantial, they are reliable, and they are between friends.

Yet our ties represent far more than that. The United States and Nigeria are tied to each other by the energy of two great peoples, always ready for challenge but committed as well to conservation both of our resources and of the enduring values which give us stability and courage amid a world of change.

Under your energetic, yet careful, leadership, Nigeria is moving to confront its needs and mobilize its resources in important areas of national life: agriculture and rural improvement, balanced industrial development, education and social services.
We are gratified that you and so many Nigerians have turned to the United States as a partner in many of these endeavors. We look forward to realizing the goals of the many agreements reached by our countries at the Lagos bilateral economic talks in July, and during the visit of my science and technology advisor just two weeks ago. Your visit enabled us to review our progress, and to accelerate our joint efforts.

A year ago, Nigeria took up its rightful place as one of the largest democracies in the world, with a Constitution quite close to our own. The voice of Nigeria has been heard with ever-increasing clarity and force in continental and world affairs since then.

The United States has worked closely with you and your ministers on many questions of mutual concern, including the process that led to independence for Zimbabwe. We will continue to strive together until Namibia achieves independence and we are fortunate to have your advice and counsel on these and many other important international issues.

Africa has been fortunate in the restoration of Nigeria to vigorous civilian democracy, and in your leadership at this important time. If, as the head of the Organization of African Unity remarked to some visiting Nigerian officials, Nigeria should be a big umbrella for Africa, then we are all fortunate indeed that you are the man to hold the umbrella.

Mr. President, as you return to Nigeria tomorrow, I want you to know that you go with our good will and best wishes. Your visit has strengthened the friendly ties between Nigeria and the United States. I ask all of our guests to stand and join me in a toast to President Shagari and the people of Nigeria, as evidence of our esteem and respect for him and for his country. Good health, and best wishes in your important endeavors in the days ahead.

In one sense this moment marks a new stage in the relationship of our two countries, and of our administrations, for it is your first visit to the White House, and comes during your first visit to the United States as Nigeria's President. Indeed, I understand that this is your first official visit outside of Africa, and we are very pleased that you have chosen the United States for that purpose.

In a deeper sense, however, this is not a departure or change in our relationship, which has been for some time now one of great cordiality, cooperation, and effective consultation. Our relations are based on shared values and on a shared commitment to freedom, democracy, and human dignity.

Nigeria and the United States stood firm together for majority rule in Zimbabwe. Despite strong pressures, the United States continued to maintain sanctions against Rhodesia until democratic elections could be held.

We continue to stand for peace and for majority rule in southern Africa, and support the negotiations on Namibia under United Nations auspices as the best hope for a just and peaceful settlement there.

We support your efforts, and those of other nations in the Organization of African Unity, to secure negotiated settlements to other conflicts on the continent.

America supports the goals of freedom from the tragic waste of war, freedom from outside domination and military intervention in Africa.

Americans have welcomed the return of democratic government in Nigeria, Chad and Upper Volta and the movement of other nations in that direction. We believe that democracy provides not only the greatest potential happiness and fulfillment for individuals, but also the greatest potential for long-term economic development.

I am looking forward to spending this morning with you, for those of my government who have had the opportunity to meet and speak with you have told me how much they enjoyed, and learned from, the encounter. I hope, as I said earlier, that you will return frequently to the United States.

1. PRESIDENT SHAGARI, LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

2. WE ARE HONORED TONIGHT BY TWO GREAT ARTISTS -- ONE OF NIGERIA'S FINEST POETS, PRESIDENT SHAGARI, AND ONE OF THIS COUNTRY'S FINEST ACTRESSES, CICELY TYSON.

3. OFTEN AT STATE DINNERS WE ARE ENTERTAINED BY GREAT MUSICIANS. TONIGHT, WE ARE GOING TO HEAR THE MUSIC OF WORDS, INCLUDING SELECTIONS FROM PRESIDENT SHAGARI'S "THE SONG OF NIGERIA."

4. WHILE THE POETRY MS. TYSON WILL READ IS AFRICAN AND AFRO-AMERICAN IN ORIGIN, IT IS UNIVERSAL IN MEANING, AND APPEAL.

5. IT IS STRONG POETRY, BEAUTIFUL POETRY. IT IS POETRY THAT REFLECTS THE QUEST FOR FREEDOM, IDENTITY AND HUMAN DIGNITY THAT HAS BEEN THE CENTRAL THEME OF BLACK HISTORY THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

6. IT IS ALSO POETRY THAT REFLECTS A COMMON HERITAGE. THE FIRST GREAT BLACK AUTOBIOGRAPHY WAS WRITTEN BY A NIGERIAN ENSLAVED IN THIS COUNTRY. IT WENT THROUGH EIGHT EDITIONS BEFORE 1794. THIS COUNTRY'S EARLIEST POEMS WERE SUNG AS SLAVE SONGS BY THE SONS AND DAUGHTERS OF NIGERIA.

7. THE CULTURAL TIES BETWEEN OUR TWO COUNTRIES HAVE ALSO BEEN CLOSE IN MODERN TIMES. LANGSTON HUGHES AND THE FIRST PRESIDENT OF INDEPENDENT NIGERIA, NNAMDI AZIKIWE [nom-dee ah-ZEE-kee-way], WERE SCHOOLMATES. AT HIS INAUGURATION IN 1960 PRESIDENT
AZIKIWE ENDED HIS ADDRESS WITH A POEM BY HUGHES.

8. IT IS FITTING THAT LANGSTON HUGHES IS ONE OF THE AMERICAN POETS FEATURED TONIGHT. IT IS ALSO FITTING THAT CICELY TYSON READ HIS WORK.

9. HER WORK ON STAGE AND CAMERA HAS BEEN CALLED POETRY IN ACTION. OFF-STAGE CICELY TYSON ALSO ACTS ON BEHALF OF POETRY. I UNDERSTAND THAT SHE SETS ASIDE ONE MONTH A YEAR TO TRAVEL TO COLLEGE CAMPUSES AROUND THE COUNTRY -- WHERE SHE GIVES POETRY READINGS.

11. SHE HAS WON SO MANY AWARDS -- EMMYS, ACADEMY AWARD NOMINATIONS, AND OTHERS -- THAT IT IS HARD TO KNOW WHICH TO SINGLE OUT. BUT, ONE THING THAT I PARTICULARLY REMEMBER IS HER AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF MISS JANE PITTMAN -- AND THAT IT HAS WON MORE AWARDS THAN ANY OTHER DRAMA IN TELEVISION HISTORY.

11. ROSALYNN AND I ARE PLEASED TO WELCOME YOU TO ANOTHER SUPERB PERFORMANCE BY CICELY TYSON.

Mental Health Systems Act Signing Ceremony

It's a pleasure to be here at the Woodburn Center*, which has served the citizens of Northern Virginia for 30 years. I am delighted to have with me the two House members who represent this area -- Congressman (Joe) Fisher and (Herb) Harris.

I have been looking forward to this day for a long time! As you know, Rosalynn has worked very hard on this legislation and while mental health is an issue of vital importance to each of us, it has special significance to me because of my wife's intense involvement.

Today, I want to make clear the depth of my personal commitment to assuring that our nation -- so full of opportunity for so many -- offers greater opportunity for decent care to those with mental and emotional difficulties.

* Woodburn received a $646,393 construction grant in 1969 and grants for services of $3.24 million, 1974-1980.

Rosalynn and I became interested in mental health in Georgia. We observed lives wasted because of needs long unmet. When I was Governor, we worked to increase and improve services. When we came to Washington, Rosalynn welcomed the opportunity to broaden those efforts.

Less than a month after I took office, I issued an executive order creating the President's Commission on Mental Health, and my wife agreed to serve as Honorary Chairman. Under the leadership of Dr. Thomas Bryant, the Commission studied the mental health needs of the nation and in April, 1978, presented its recommendations, which served as a blueprint for this act.

The legislation, which was submitted to the Congress in May, 1979, was further developed through the dedicated efforts of Senators Kennedy and Schweiker and Congressmen Waxman and Carter.
Without their persistent efforts to shepherd it through the Congress, we would not be here today.

The Mental Health Systems Act I am signing this afternoon is designed to provide vital services to the most underserved groups in our nation. The states, which have long borne the major burden of care for chronic mental illness, will be able to provide better services to all.

This is the most important piece of federal mental health legislation since President John Kennedy signed the Community Mental Health and Mental Retardation Facilities Act in 1963. I am proud that my family and his family have been able to work closely to develop this and secure its passage.

Despite advances in research, increases in the number of mental health personnel, and the dramatic shift from inpatient to community-based care, many of our citizens still do not have access to high-quality mental health care at reasonable cost.
This act is especially aimed at addressing the problems of underserved groups -- minorities, people in rural areas, the poor -- and it targets new funds for services to severely disturbed children and adolescents and the elderly.

Special emphasis is placed on the care and treatment of chronic mental illness to ensure that mental health support and aftercare services are available at the community level.

The Act also provides federal grants, for the first time, for projects to prevent mental illness and to promote mental health. It also includes grants to initiate advocacy programs to protect the rights of the mentally ill.

In the past, a lack of flexibility in Federal funding of community-based services has prevented some communities from providing any services at all and has limited programs for underserved populations in others.

This act creates significant new opportunities for communities to address their most pressing needs first and forges a more flexible partnership between federal and state governments so that they can chart a new course that is comprehensive and responsive to the needs of all our people.

One of the great benefits of this act must be and shall be the improved care of the emotionally disturbed within families, especially when handicapped persons such as mentally retarded individuals are involved. We have come a long way since the days when handicapped and disturbed people, especially children and the elderly, were routinely separated from their families and shut away from society. We know how important the love and support of the family can be to the most vulnerable among us, but too often families have not had the help and services they need readily at hand.

I am convinced that this Act will reduce the suffering of millions of Americans who are robbed of satisfying lives by mental illness. This Act expands our national commitment to mental health with the ultimate aim that all who need mental health services receive prompt care by qualified people -- whatever their need, wherever they may live, however they might come into the system.

Senator Kennedy is anxious to have this sentence included.

WASHINGTON
October 7, 1980

It is a pleasure to extend my greetings to the business leaders of Southeast Asia and the United States assembled at Singapore for the Second Plenary Meeting of the ASEAN-U.S. Business Council.

Your mutual interchanges and efforts in support of the goals of peace, progress and stability in the Southeast Asia region are valued support for your governments' active commitment to those same vital objectives. Although the Council is yet young, it has already compiled a record of significant service. It has helped direct world attention to the many opportunities for social improvement which common effort by five good neighbors can open, even in the midst of severe challenges to the peace. Your work serves as the touchstone for establishment of similar ASEAN ties with the business communities of other nations of goodwill, and you have started activities promising eventual benefit to the people of all the countries involved.

For the United States, it is gratifying to observe that trade with ASEAN has grown so that its collective ranking among our trading partners has increased from fifth to fourth place over the past year and one-half. American investment ties to ASEAN, which experienced dramatic growth in the last decades, are substantial, and will continue to expand.

I wish you continued success as you marshal your professional skills to advance the well-being of our six nations and peoples.

State urges that the President sign a formal letter this year because the Council received only a Presidential message last year.

FROM: STU EIZENSTAT
        DAVID RUBENSTEIN

SUBJECT: Reagan Quotes

As we have discussed, if you decide to continue to attack Governor Reagan, I believe the most effective way is simply by quoting him. If you continuously repeat a number of his quotes, obviously using the ones most appropriate for a particular audience, the press will begin to pick it up and Reagan will eventually be forced to respond. This also avoids charges of "overkill" or hyperbole.

The context for the quotes should be repeated statements by you pointing out the folly of Reagan now saying -- in light of what he has said in the past -- that he is for helping the unemployed or for helping workers. You could use these by saying, "I don't think the American people want a President who believes that . . .", or "How can Mr. Reagan say he is concerned about the unemployed when he says that . . ." I believe the press and the public would be receptive to this so long as it avoids characterization and sticks to actual quotes.

Attached are the quotes I would recommend for repeated usage.
MEMORANDUM TO THE WHITE HOUSE OFFICE STAFF

I would like you to join with me in generous support this year of the 1981 Combined Federal Campaign of the National Capital Area. As you remember from past years, this is something about which I care deeply. The CFC represents 212 member organizations which are carefully chosen and must be willing to open their books to public scrutiny.

The CFC asks you to contribute a small amount of each paycheck to a very worthwhile cause which will aid thousands of your fellow Americans. This is the only official solicitation for a financial donation conducted in the White House. Our campaign will begin on October 14, 1980.

I am pleased to report that last year's effort was highly successful. Let's all work together for an even greater accomplishment this year!

11. WHEN HE LEFT OFFICE, STATE SPENDING HAD INCREASED BY 125%.
12. AND THE NUMBER OF STATE EMPLOYEES INCREASED BY 30% --
13. THE FASTEST PER CAPITA GROWTH RATE IN THE STATE'S HISTORY.

(=End of INSERT=)
IF GOV. REAGAN IS ACTUALLY TALKING ABOUT SOMEOTHER KIND OF MASSIVE TRANSFER OF TAX REVENUES, DESPITE HIS REPEATED STATEMENTS THAT TAX SOURCES WOULD BE TRANSFERRED, HE HAS AN OBLIGATION TO EXPLAIN HIS PROPOSAL FULLY. HOW WOULD THIS IDEA DEAL WITH THE INEQUITIES AMONG STATES, AND HOW DOES IT SQUARE WITH THE NEED TO REDUCE THE TREMENDOUS INEQUITY DEFICITS THAT WOULD BE PRODUCED BY KEMP ROTH REAGAN UNLESS LARGE STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS ARE FORCED TO PICK UP THE COST OF MAJOR PROGRAMS NOW PAID FOR BY THE FEDERAL TREASURY.

FIGURES DON'T Add up
Governor Reagan has proposed a change in the way education and welfare programs are funded and administered -- a change which will inevitably have the effect of increasing state and local property taxes. Under Governor Reagan's proposal, like his $90 billion transfer proposal in 1976, education and welfare programs would be transferred to the states, along with the funding sources to pay for them.

While Governor Reagan has not been specific, this could be done in only one of two ways -- and either way would be costly to the citizens of Wisconsin. If the funding sources Governor Reagan refers to are state property taxes, Wisconsin would have to raise an additional $1 billion in taxes. That is the amount which would be required to make up the $1 billion Wisconsin now receives from the federal government for education and welfare programs. If Wisconsin chose to raise the money through property taxes solely, that would mean a 63 percent increase in those taxes, or an additional increase of $870 for a family of four.

If the funding sources Reagan Reagan refers to are federal revenues, and he is simply proposing to let each state keep the revenues it now provides to the federal government for education and welfare programs, he is again making spending promises that are incompatible with Reagan-Kemp-Roth. That inflationary tax cut will require enormous cuts in domestic programs -- like education and welfare -- if it is to be provided in the way Governor Reagan proposes. It is just not possible to let every state keep federal tax dollars for those programs, because those are the same dollars he needs to pay for Reagan-Kemp-Roth. So again the only way to keep education and welfare programs at the current level in Wisconsin would be to increase state taxes to pay for them.

This program is conceived as a series of poetry readings highlighting the common heritage and shared aspirations of Africans and Afro-Americans. The poetry of eight Afro-Americans and three Nigerians is featured. The unifying thread that links the selections to one another is the theme poem -- "Runagate, Runagate" by the Afro-American poet, Robert Hayden. The text of "Runagate" is presented below:

Runagate

I.

Runs falls rises stumbles on from darkness into darkness and the darkness thicketed with shapes of terror and the hunters pursuing and the hounds pursuing and the night cold and the night long and the river to cross and the jack-mub-lanterns beckoning beckoning and blackness ahead and when shall I reach that somewhere morning and keep on going and never turn back and keep on going

Runagate

Runagate

Many thousands rise and go many thousands crossing over

O mythic North

Some go weeping and some rejoicing some in coffins and some in carriages some in silks and some in shackles

Rise and go or fare you well

No more auction block for me
no more driver's lash for me

If you see my Pompey, 30 yrs of age,

if you see my Anna, likely young mulatto

Catch them if you can, but it won't be easy.
They'll dart underground when you try to catch them, plunge into quicksand, whirlpools, mazes,
turn into scorpions when you try to catch them.
And before I'll be a slave
I'll be buried in my grave

North star and bonanza gold
I'm bound for the freedom, freedom-bound and oh Susyanna don't you cry for me

Harriet Tubman, woman of earth, whipscarred, a summoning, a shining

And this was the way of it, brethren moon so bright and no place to hide, the cry up and the patterrollers riding, bound dogs belling in bladed air.
And fear starts a-nurbling, Never make it, we'll never make it. Hush that now, and she's turned upon us, levelled pistol
but light in the moonlight:
Dead folks can't jaybird-talk, she says:
you keep on going now or die, she says.

Cicely Tyson, the widely acclaimed Afro-American actress will deliver the series of readings under the program title: "Variations on a Theme by Robert Hayden: Runagate, Runagate." Featured Afro-American poets are Gwendolyn Brooks, Countee Cullen, Paul Lawrence Dunbar, Mari Evans, Nikki Giovanni, Langston Hughes, and James Weldon Johnson. Nigerian poets are George Okara, Shehu Shagari and Wole Soyinka. (See attached biographical sketches.)

BACKGROUND

Modern African and Afro-American literature were inspired by and came to maturity within the context of their author's and people's respective struggles for freedom and identity. Black literary expression has been inextricably linked to Blacks' political, social and economic experience in Africa, Europe and the Americas. Whether African, European or American by place of birth, Blacks have been intensely aware of the impositions of Western civilization and their peoples' ambiguous relationship to it. At the same time, they have been forced to react to the derogatory images of Africa and peoples of African descent that have been fostered by some Europeans and white Americans. The struggle to resolve these contradictions--the quest for freedom, identity and human dignity--has been the central theme of black history in the modern world. Black literary expressions--from Africa, Europe or the Americas--reflect these concerns.

The poetry of Afro-American and Nigerian poets is featured in this evening's program. Several factors make this kind of literary tribute appropriate for this occasion.
First, though it is not well known, the interaction between Nigeria and Afro-American literature dates back at least to the 18th century. While records do not exist to support this assertion, it is likely that sons and daughters of Nigeria were counted among Afro-American's first poets—the creators of the earliest slave songs. What is clear and documented is that a Nigerian—Olandah Equiano or Gustavus Vassa—produced the, "first truly notable book in the genre now known as slave narratives"\(^1\), The Interesting Narrative of the Life of Olandah Equiano, or Gustavus Vassa, The African. Published in 1789, it had gone through eight editions by 1794. It is still in print today and is also recognized as the first great Black autobiography. According to Arna Bontemps, an authority on the slave narrative as a genre, "the recorded memoirs of the questing slaves were felt by many readers of the nineteenth century to epitomize the condition of man on the earth as it documented the personal history of the individual to whom bondage was real and freedom more than a dream."

Students of Afro-American literature have noted that, "with the exception of the folksongs, the Negro's worthiest contribution to American literature had been his personal memoirs." Equiano's, Narrative though not the first such Afro-American memoir, was the first important one. Significantly, Equiano demonstrated a capacity for poetic expression in this narrative. Passages on the identity and freedom-quest themes were interspersed throughout.

Another major contribution to Afro-American literature, drew its sustenance from a Nigerian contact. This time, the author was an Afro-American, Martin R. Delaney, who travelled to Nigeria in 1859, "Search of a Place", where freed Afro-Americans could be resettled in Africa. The narrative of his journey, Official Report of the Niger Valley Exploring Party, eventually was published under the title "Search for a Place". It is another important text in that it presents detailed insights into the nature of African societies from an Afro-American point of view. It also notes that Delaney negotiated an agreement with the Nigerians to settle Afro-Americans in Lagos and Abeskuta. Only the coming of the American Civil War halted this project.

One final interaction can be noted among many. Nnamdi Azikiwe, the first President of independent Nigeria was a schoolmate of Langston Hughes, one of the featured poets of this evening. Hughes was invited to Nigeria in 1960 when Azikiwe was inaugurated, and he ended his inaugural address with Hughes' poem of optimism--"Dawn". Hughes, inspired by developments in Nigeria and throughout the African continent, reciprocated by compiling and publishing an anthology--An African Treasury: Articles, Essays, Stories and Poems by Black Africans which presented to the world, for the first time since independence, the literary strivings of emergent Africa.

NOTE: One of the Nigerian poets being read is Shehu Shagari, who is the President of Nigeria.

October 6, 1980

To: The President
From: Bob Dunn

Subject: Phone Call to Congressman Reuss

On Friday of last week Rep. Reuss was in surgery for ten hours. He had five heart bypasses. He is being transferred today out of the intensive care unit.

Should you have the time en route to Milwaukee, you might wish to phone him at the hospital. The operator has the telephone number at St. Mary's Hospital in Milwaukee.

FROM: Jody Powell
         Linda Peck
RE: Your Wisconsin and Illinois press time,
    Monday, October 6, 1980

WISCONSIN:

1. Ten minute one-on-one interview with Milwaukee station WTMJ-TV, NBC affiliate with 35% of the market share. The station has been fair in its campaign coverage to date, and will run the interview in one ten minute segment on Monday night in its three news shows at 5:00, 6:00, and 10:00 p.m.

   John McCollough (MC CUL' LA), WTMJ-TV's 5:00 p.m. news anchor, will conduct the interview. He has been with the station for more than ten years, and rarely does interviews except for special assignments. McCullough interviewed you three times during the 1976 campaign, including an in-studio taping in the spring of '76 and a one-on-one interview at the Marc Plaza Hotel in September. McCollough is well-respected both as a journalist and news anchor.

2. Ten-minute one-on-one interview with Milwaukee station WISN-TV, the ABC affiliate and third-rated station in the market. WISN has also been fair in its campaign coverage, and runs its local news shows at 5:30 and 10:00 p.m. The interview will run in one ten-minute segment on both news shows.

   Jerry Taft, co-anchor of the station's two newscasts, will conduct the interview. Taft has been with the station less than a year, and has done few interviews to date. He normally covers the Republican candidates in the state, but is substituting for his counterpart this week. Taft is considered less familiar with Milwaukee politics and issues than McCollough, and is more of a reporter than an anchor.

NOTE: WITI-TV, the CBS affiliate and market-leader, did a half-hour taping with you for its premiere show of "TV 6 News Headliners" on September 26 in Washington, D.C.

3. Five-minute interview with Elliott Maraniss, editor of the Madison Capital Times, one of the most liberal (if not the most liberal) papers in the country. The Capital Times (PM, circulation: 34,000) has a long and proud tradition of support for the liberal cause, and was one of the first major dailies to endorse John Anderson last spring. The paper endorsed Udall in the 1976 primary, but had a glowing front-page endorsement for you in the general election.

Elliott Maraniss, originally a strong Anderson supporter, now sees Anderson as a spoiler with no chance of winning the election. He is ready to renounce the paper's original endorsement and support you, on the basis that a vote for Anderson is a vote for Reagan, whom he detests. Maraniss needs to hear more specifics on your liberal achievements, such as minority appointments, civil rights, aid to cities, welfare reform, and general social programs. Additional emphasis should be placed on the need to reunite the party, especially the liberal coalition. Raise the spectre of a Reagan presidency.

The Capital Times has editorialized almost exclusively on state and local issues in the past few weeks, including criticism of Republican Governor Dreyfus' plans to "lop 4.4 percent off the state's aid to cities." It now turns out that it's the cities, not the state, that will have to pay for the Dreyfus campaign promises of rebating practically the entire state budget surplus. In the end it will be the residents of those cities who will feel the crunch." (9/26) The paper has also supported Democratic incumbent Senator Gaylord Nelson over his Republican opponent, Robert Kasten, whom the paper describes as a "38 year-old reactionary." The Capital Times notes that, "Apparently some creative campaign strategist directed Kasten to go after Nelson's strengths -- his well-earned national reputation as an environmentalist and critic of wasteful military spending." (10/1)

Maraniss has been with the Capital Times for more than ten years, formerly as executive editor. Maraniss and the Capital Times are very influential in the Wisconsin's liberal community, and this interview will help determine the strength of their endorsement of you.

NOTE: Maraniss will have a photographer with him.
CHICAGO:

Thirty-minute roundtable with suburban Chicago editors, representing DuPage, Will, Cook, Kane, and Lake counties.

Lou Lerner, owner of Lerner Publications, and his wife Sue will attend this event. Lerner, former Ambassador to Norway and past president of the Cook County Suburban Publishers Association, is a strong supporter and deserves credit for helping plan this event. (Note: Today is Sue Lerner's birthday.)

Lerner will introduce you to each editor at the table and individual photographs will be taken at this time. The format for the briefing from this point on will be the same as your White House Media Liaison editors' briefings.

STU EIZENSTAT
HAMILTON JORDAN

The following was returned in the President's outbox and is forwarded to you for your information.

Rick Hutcheson
Dear Mr. President:

I appreciate the invitation to ride to the airport with you today. The time of our visit will be short. Since you properly must view our interchange on a cost effective basis - it might be helpful if I put my thoughts in writing.

At this point in your campaign,

1. May I respectfully suggest that I believe you need to do a powerful lot of convincing that your administration has more to offer many of my friends who will vote for Anderson - if they see his ratings increase to the point where they believe they will not be throwing away their vote by supporting him. I can tell you that many of my friends and associates in Milwaukee and around the country are in this category.

2. I believe you need to convince many "undecideds" that you have more to offer in terms of leadership, policies, sense of direction, statesmanship, etc., than Ronald Reagan.

I believe you are concentrating on trying to attract suburbanites who are the swing voters. I am a suburbanite. I want constructive answers -- not attacks on opposing candidates. I want to have a well designed blueprint of the future from the candidate I support. I must say that promises, unrelated to how they will be met, turn me off. Talk to us as intelligent, thinking, concerned citizens who are looking for meaningful answers. We are tired of the rhetoric.
President Jimmy Carter

Bottom line, let me suggest that you develop a well thought out strategy to attract those "considering Anderson if viable" and those "leaning towards Reagan."

1. Talk to them in constructive terms - don't play down Anderson as a media creation. Don't constantly attack and spend big media dollars by trying to show Reagan as a poor administrator in California - a trigger happy person, a racist. Frankly, I'm unconvinced by your party's ads on Reagan's administration as Governor of California. I react the same to his ads showing all that he accomplished. Neither portrayal is convincing. Figures can be used in different ways.

2. Show how you will beat inflation which is U.S. Public Enemy #1. How will you, in specific terms, bring the inflation rate down to 5% without massive unemployment in the next few years? If this can be done, give us your plan and timetables.

3. Show how you will balance the federal budget - for the next 4 years. We were promised a balanced budget for the fiscal year just starting -- but that doesn't seem possible. Spell out what you will recommend to balance the federal budget over the next 4 years. Reagan's proposals are not believable. Present yours in a believable and pragmatic manner and you will win over a good share of the target group.

4. Spell out in specific terms how you will reduce unemployment during the next 4 years. Being intimately involved with employment as President of Manpower, Inc. over 30 years, I question your TV commercials which promise "millions and millions of jobs" in the future. Spell out the "How to". I've discussed the jobs problem with Stu Eizenstat, Anne Wexler and Bill Spring. I'll be glad to provide some new ideas to you.

5. Pound away on the reindustrialization of America. You are on the right track. Show the average American what this will mean in answering his questions, "What's in it for me?" "How will my job be more secure?" -- "How will I have increased job opportunities?"

6. Show how your plans will provide for more housing. Millions of Americans want to buy homes at under 10%
President Jimmy Carter
October 6, 1980

rates of interest. There must be ways for our government to assist in a massive plan of this type.

7. Tell us your strategy to regain the confidence and trust of our allies over the next 4 years. Reagan is scoring on this without telling how he will accomplish this goal. What are your plans?

8. Show how our defenses are not as weak as portrayed - if that is the case. Outline how you will place all of our military on a "constant ready" basis. Why shouldn't it be now?

9. Provide a new approach to dealing with the Russians which will give comfort and the needed assurances to Americans over the next 4 years. The target group defined above knows there are no simple answers to the problem. They know that saber rattling and threats are not the solution leading to peaceful coexistence with the Russians. What is your plan?

10. On the Mideast, keep stressing negotiations under the Camp David accords. I agree with Sol Linowitz when he says "that's the only game in town." As an American Jew, I salute you on bringing about the Camp David agreement. Continue to show how important these agreements are to producing peace in the Mideast.

11. Don't consider American Jews as "one-issue" (their interest in Israel) people. While we have an intense interest in the survival and development of Israel, we have the same interests as other Americans in reducing inflation and unemployment. We want fiscal restraints. We stand for human rights and civil rights. You properly stressed this point in your B'nai B'rith speech. As Past President of the American Jewish Committee, I can tell you that our large national constituency believes that America's best interests are served by our members' participation in all activities relating to human and civil rights . . . including our support for Israel. Talk to us not just of Israel but our total concerns as Americans.

I believe if you give serious thought to the implementation of some of these ideas and suggestions, you will win over a large number of those "considering Anderson if viable" and those "leaning towards Reagan."

I will be glad to amplify any of these suggestions.

I wish you well.

Very truly yours,

Elmer L. Winter
