MEMORANDUM TO: THE PRESIDENT AND MRS. CARTER
FROM: GRETCHEN POSTON

SUBJECT: ENTERTAINMENT FOR FRESHMEN CONGRESSMEN
         DECEMBER 6, 1978 - Tom Taylor as Woody Guthrie

Tom Taylor has appeared at Ford's Theatre as Woody Guthrie since November 1. His show has toured North America and Great Britain for three years, painting a heart-warming, sensitive picture of the man who has been called the poet of the American landscape. It is filled with Guthrie's songs the way Guthrie wrote and performed them, including "This Train is Bound for Glory," "So Long It's Been Good to Know You," and "This Land is Your Land," and "Do Re Mi."

He uncannily mimics the whining Guthrie mannerisms later captured by Bob Dylan, and captures Guthrie's determination and struggle for basic staples of life. Arlo Guthrie's father died of Huntington's chorea 11 years ago at age 55. Marjorie Guthrie, his wife, has established through Congress, a committee for combatting the muscle-deteriorating disease.

Guthrie's tragic early family life, his radio programs in Los Angeles, his work as a union organizer, and his Merchant Marine service during World War II are all accounted by Taylor, who really began writing the show some 15 years ago while in college. Bob Dylan's first album and a tune called "Song to Woody" had piqued his curiosity.

Mainly associated with the dustbowl depression era, Guthrie was to receive wide public notice when the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy called him a Communist in 1950. It wasn't until the year of his death that then-Interior Secretary Stewart Udall appended the "poet of the American landscape" tribute on the man.

Taylor is an accomplished guitar player and renders a stunning harmonica. He will do his "dustbowl segment," a two-minute piece, entitled "Build Me A World," his show that makes a beautiful statement about the American people, and will conclude with interspersed songs ("This Land is Your Land," etc.)

TO: THE PRESIDENT AND MRS. CARTER
FROM: GRETCHEN POSTON
SUBJECT: MRS. WOODY (MARJORIE) GUTHRIE

Mrs. Guthrie has accepted the invitation to the dinner for Freshmen Congressmen tomorrow night.

The entertainment featuring Tom Taylor as Woody Guthrie is the reason for her invitation.

Mrs. Guthrie started the Committee to Combat Huntingdon Disease following Guthrie's death in 1967. She has just been named as Founder, and President Emeritus after serving as volunteer for the Committee since its inception.

Huntingdon's is a dominant genetic disease and they have worked closely with the National Institute of Health for many years in research and achieving grants and monies. She is a member of the Executive Committee of the National Committee for Research in Neurological and Communicative Disorders as well.

Mrs. Guthrie lectures and attends conferences all over this country and around the world in conjunction with the March of Dimes and on behalf of the various major health organizations she serves as consultant to.

She received the Robert H. Felix Distinguished Service Award from the St. Louis University School of Medicine this year and a citation from the Mayor of New York City as a Volunteer Activist for her work in the city, and has been appointed to the New York State Genetic Task Force.

Mrs. Guthrie was successful in receiving money tagged directly for research of Huntingdon's Disease through the National Genetic Diseases Act this year. Genetic counseling centers in some 20 states receive monies as well as a result of her direct efforts.

She serves as a Trustee of the Woody Guthrie Foundation and is President of Woody Guthrie Publications and was consultant to the film of her husband's life, "Bound for Glory" and for the one-man show, "Woody Guthrie."

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: BERNIE ARONSON, BOB RACKLEFF

SUBJECT: Talking Points for Freshman Congressmen

December 6, 1978

1. I want to welcome all of you in the freshman class to the White House and to Washington. I want to congratulate you on the honor you have been given by the people in your districts and states.

You are privileged to have the opportunity to work with the House and Senate leadership. Tip O'Neill, Bob Byrd, Howard Baker, and John Rhodes are public leaders with great experience and insight.

I also invite all of you to work closely with me and my staff, my Cabinet, and agency heads.

Part of the genius of our system of government is the separation of powers. With this system, we have avoided the stifling influence of a rigid, all-encompassing central government. Our system also depends greatly on bipartisan cooperation. In virtually every major challenge to our country, we have relied on and succeeded because of this bipartisan spirit. Our system has been a source of great strength and stability for our nation. America is the oldest continuing democracy in the world today.

2. In the last two years, we have made important progress in reducing unemployment and stimulating economic growth; in meeting the energy crisis; in making government more efficient; combatting fraud and abuse; and advancing the cause of democracy and human rights and peace. I am determined to continue these efforts, and I will need your help.

3. When the 95th Congress convenes next month, the country expects us to face several important challenges.

-- First, the most important domestic challenge is inflation. I have no higher priority and the Congress will have no greater responsibility.
With your help, we can build an economy with stable prices, decent incomes, and expanding opportunities.

-- Second, we must continue progress in meeting human needs, reducing unemployment, improving education, health care, helping our distressed cities and rural areas, environmental quality, and equal rights.

-- And finally, we must continue progress toward world peace and stability. Our military strength is and will remain so strong and ready, no nation will be tempted to test it. But we must redouble our efforts for peace -- to expand human rights and democracy -- to halt the spread of nuclear weapons -- and to produce a sound, responsible new SALT Treaty.

4. Each one of you has an important contribution to make. During the next two years, I will be asking for your support on crucial legislation. I want you also to tell me when our policies can be improved.

Finally, I hope that we'll get a chance to talk, not just when we're working on a specific problem, and get to know each other as friends and colleagues.

5. I kept my remarks brief tonight because I want you to enjoy our entertainment -- Tom Taylor in his one-man show about Woody Guthrie.

All of us have heard Woody Guthrie's songs as part of the past. But Woody's songs are just as fresh today. They tell us much about the spirit of America that still exists -- of refusal to bow to adversity and determination to work hard for the basic needs of our people.

JOKES FOR DINNER WITH NEW DEMOCRATS IN CONGRESS

1. I know how excited I was when I first arrived in Washington two years ago. I had dreamed all my life of the day when a Southerner would be in charge of the Federal government. I found out what it was like the past two years . . . . only the Southerner was Russell Long.

2. You will have many privileges as a Congressman living in Washington.

   -- You will discover that the Capitol complex was carefully designed to give you a 50-50 chance of reaching the House or Senate floor for a roll call vote without ending up in the boiler room.

   -- You will have the privilege of paying twice as much for half the housing you could afford back home and being told you got a terrific bargain.

   -- And you will be entitled to 1/3 the staff you probably need if you can only find enough office space to house them.

But you will soon find out what is expected of you -- attending two committee meetings simultaneously, casting a vote on the floor, meeting with me at the White House, and speaking at a Rotary luncheon in your district . . . . all at the same time. Good Luck!
3. I feel an affinity to Tom Taylor, since he began performing Woody Guthrie over three years ago, about the same time I began running for President. Now we're both in the White House -- at least temporarily.
What I have to say to you today is fundamentally very simple. It is something I have said many times. But it cannot be said too often... or too firmly... or too strongly.

As long as I am President, the government of the United States will struggle for the enhancement of human rights. No force on earth can separate us from that commitment.

This week, we commemorate the 30th anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. We rededicate ourselves -- in the words of Eleanor Roosevelt, Chairperson of the Human Rights Commission -- to the Universal Declaration as "a common standard of achievement for all peoples of all nations."

The Universal Declaration and the Human Rights conventions that derive from it do not describe the world as it is.

But these documents are very important nonetheless. They are a beacon -- a guide to a future of personal security, political freedom and social justice.

--For millions of people...
FOR MILLIONS OF PEOPLE AROUND THE GLOBE, THAT BEACON IS STILL DISTANT -- A GLIMMER OF LIGHT ON A DARK HORIZON OF DEPRIVATION AND REPRESSION.

POLITICAL KILLINGS, TORTURE, ARBITRARY AND PROLONGED DETENTION WITHOUT CHARGE OR TRIAL -- THESE ARE THE CRUELEST AND UGLIEST OF HUMAN RIGHTS VIOLATIONS.

OF ALL HUMAN RIGHTS, THE MOST BASIC IS TO BE FREE OF ARBITRARY VIOLENCE -- WHETHER THAT VIOLENCE COMES FROM GOVERNMENTS, FROM TERRORISTS, FROM CRIMINALS, OR FROM SELF-APPOINTED MESSIAHS OPERATING UNDER THE COVER OF POLITICS OR RELIGION.

BUT GOVERNMENTS -- BECAUSE THEIR POWER IS SO MUCH GREATER THAN THAT OF ANY INDIVIDUAL -- HAVE A SPECIAL RESPONSIBILITY.

THE FIRST DUTY OF A GOVERNMENT IS TO PROTECT ITS CITIZENS. WHEN GOVERNMENT ITSELF BECOMES THE PERPETRATOR OF ARBITRARY VIOLENCE, IT UNDERMINES ITS LEGITIMACY.
There are other violations of the body and the spirit, equally destructive of human life. Hunger, disease, and poverty are enemies of human potential as relentless as any repressive government.

The American people want the actions of their government both to reduce human suffering and to increase human freedom.

That is why -- with the help and encouragement of many of you in this room -- I have sought to rekindle the beacon of human rights in American foreign policy.

Over the last two years, we have tried to express these human concerns as our diplomats practice their craft and as our nation fulfills its international obligations.

We will speak out when individual rights are violated in other lands.

The Universal Declaration means that no nation can draw the cloak of sovereignty over torture, disappearances, officially-sanctioned bigotry, or the destruction of freedom within its own borders.

The message that is being delivered by all our representatives abroad -- whether they are from the Department of State, of Commerce, of Agriculture, or of Defense -- is that human rights count in the character of our relations with other countries.

--In distributing the...
In distributing the scarce resources of our foreign assistance programs, we will demonstrate that our deepest affinities are with nations which commit themselves to a democratic path to development.

Toward regimes which persist in wholesale violations of human rights, we will not hesitate to convey our outrage -- nor will we pretend that our relations are unaffected.

In the coming year, I hope that Congress will take a step that has been overdue for a generation: the ratification of the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide.

The Genocide Convention was also adopted by the United Nations General Assembly 30 years ago this week -- one day before the adoption of the Universal Declaration.

It was the world's affirmation that the lesson of the Holocaust would never be forgotten.

But unhappily, genocide is not peculiar to any one historical era.

Eighty-three other nations have ratified the Genocide Convention.

The United States -- despite the support of every President since 1948 -- has not.
IN INTERNATIONAL MEETINGS AT THE U.N. AND ELSEWHERE, WE ARE OFTEN ASKED WHY.
WE DO NOT HAVE AN ACCEPTABLE ANSWER.

I URGED THE UNITED STATES SENATE TO OBSERVE THIS ANNIVERSARY IN THE ONLY APPROPRIATE WAY: BY RATIFYING THE GENOCIDE CONVENTION AT THE EARLIEST POSSIBLE DATE.

THIS ACTION MUST BE THE FIRST STEP TOWARD THE RATIFICATION OF OTHER HUMAN RIGHTS INSTRUMENTS, INCLUDING THOSE I SIGNED A YEAR AGO.

MANY OF THE RELIGIOUS AND HUMAN RIGHTS GROUPS REPRESENTED HERE HAVE UNDERTAKEN A CAMPAIGN OF PUBLIC EDUCATION ON BEHALF OF THESE COVENANTS.

I COMMENT YOUR EFFORTS.

Refugees are the living, homeless casualties of our world's failure to live by the principles of peace and human rights. To help them is a simple human duty.

As Americans -- as a people made up largely of the descendants of refugees -- we feel that duty with special keenness.

Our country will do its utmost to ease the plight of stranded refugees from Indochina and Lebanon and of released political prisoners from Cuba and elsewhere.

--I HOPE WE WILL ALWAYS STAND....
I hope we will always stand ready to welcome more than our fair share of those who flee their homelands because of racial, religious, or political oppression.

The effectiveness of our human rights policy is now an established fact. It has contributed to an atmosphere of change that has encouraged progress in many places.

In some countries, political prisoners have been released. In others, the brutality of repression has been lessened. In still others, there is movement toward democratic institutions or the rule of law.

To those who doubt the wisdom of our dedication, I say: Ask the victims. Ask the exiles. Ask the governments which practice repression.

Whether in Cambodia or Chile, in Uganda or South Africa, in Nicaragua or Ethiopia or the Soviet Union, ... governments know that we care -- and not a single one of those who is actually taking risks or suffering for human rights has asked us to desist.

From the prisons, the camps, the enforced exiles, we receive one message -- speak up, persevere, let the voice of freedom be heard!
I am proud that our nation stands for more than military power and economic might. It stands for ideals that have their reflection in the aspirations of peasants in Latin America, ... workers in Eastern Europe, ... students in Africa, ... and farmers in Asia.

We live in a difficult, complicated world -- a world in which peace is literally a matter of survival. Our foreign policy must take this into account.

Often, a choice that moves us toward one of our goals moves us farther away from another. Seldom do circumstances permit us to take actions that are wholly satisfactory to everyone.

But I want to stress again that human rights are not peripheral to the foreign policy of the United States. Our human rights policy is not a decoration. It is not something we have adopted to polish up our image abroad, ... or to put a fresh coat of moral paint on the discredited policies of the past.

--Our pursuit of human rights, ...
Our pursuit of human rights is part of a broad effort to use our great power and influence in the service of creating a better world -- a world in which human beings can live in peace, in freedom, and with their basic needs adequately met.

Human rights is the soul of our foreign policy -- because human rights is the very soul of our sense of nationhood.

For the most part, other nations are held together by common racial or ethnic ancestry...by a common creed or religion...or by an attachment to the land that goes back many centuries in time.

Some nations are held together by the force of a tyrannical government.

We are different, and I believe we are more fortunate.

As a people, we come from every country and corner of the earth. We are of many religions and many creeds. We are of every race, every color, every ethnic and cultural background.

We are right to be proud of these things, and of the richness they lend to the texture of our national life. But they are not the things that unite us as a single people.
What unites us -- what makes us Americans -- is a common belief in peace, in the idea of a free society, and a common devotion to the liberties enshrined in our Constitution.

That belief and that devotion are the sources of our sense of national community.

Uniquely, ours is a nation founded on an idea of human rights. From our own history, we know how powerful that idea can be.

Next week marks another important human rights anniversary -- Bill of Rights Day.

Our nation was "conceived in liberty," in Lincoln's words. But it has taken nearly two centuries for that liberty to approach maturity.

For most of the first half of our history, black Americans were denied even the most basic human rights. For most of the first two-thirds, women were excluded from the political process. Their rights are still not constitutionally guaranteed.

Even freedom of speech has been threatened periodically throughout our history.

Only in the last 10 or 12 years have we achieved what Father Theodore Hesburgh has called "the legal abandonment of more than three centuries of apartheid."

--And the struggle for....
AND THE STRUGGLE FOR FULL HUMAN RIGHTS FOR ALL AMERICANS -- BLACK, BROWN AND WHITE,...MALE AND FEMALE,... RICH AND POOR -- IS FAR FROM OVER.

TO ME, AS TO MANY OF YOU, THESE ARE NOT ABSTRACT MATTERS.

IN THE RURAL GEORGIA COUNTRY WHERE I GREW UP, THE MAJORITY OF MY FELLOW CITIZENS WERE DENIED MANY BASIC RIGHTS -- THE RIGHT TO VOTE,...THE RIGHT TO SPEAK FREELY WITHOUT FEAR,...THE RIGHT TO EQUAL TREATMENT UNDER THE LAW.

I SAW AT FIRST HAND THE EFFECTS OF A SYSTEM OF DEPRIVATION OF RIGHTS.

I SAW THE COURAGE OF THOSE WHO RESISTED THAT SYSTEM.

AND, FINALLY, I SAW THE CLEANSING ENERGIES THAT WERE RELEASED WHEN MY REGION WALKED OUT OF DARKNESS AND INTO WHAT HUBERT HUMPHREY, IN THE YEAR OF THE ADOPTION OF THE UNIVERSAL DECLARATION, CALLED "THE BRIGHT SUNSHINE OF HUMAN RIGHTS."

THE AMERICAN BILL OF RIGHTS IS 187 YEARS OLD.
AND THE STRUGGLE TO MAKE IT A REALITY HAS OCCUPIED EVERY ONE OF THOSE 187 YEARS.

THE UNIVERSAL DECLARATION OF HUMAN RIGHTS IS ONLY 30 YEARS OLD. IN THE PERSPECTIVE OF HISTORY, THE IDEA OF HUMAN RIGHTS HAS ONLY JUST BEEN BROACHED.
I do not draw this comparison because I want to counsel patience. I draw it because I want to urge steadfastness and commitment.

187 years ago, as far as most Americans were concerned, the Bill of Rights was a bill of promises. There was no guarantee that those promises would be realized.

We did not realize those promises by waiting for history to take its inevitable course. We realized them because we struggled. We realized them because many sacrificed. We realized them because we persevered.

For millions around the world today, the Universal Declaration of Human Rights is still only a declaration of hope.

Like all of you, I want that hope to be fulfilled.

The struggle to fulfill it will last longer than the lifetimes of any of us;...indeed, it will last as long as the lifetime of humanity itself.

But we must persevere. And we must persevere by ensuring that this country of ours,...which we love so much,...is always in the forefront of those who are struggling for the great hope,...the great dream of universal human rights.

Thank you. # # #

December 6, 1978

Mr. President:

I have drafted the attached letter for your signature in response to George Meany's November 9 letter re HUD's subsidized housing programs.

Stu Eizenstat
To President George Meany

Thank you for your letter of November 9 recommending that the Administration seek authorization for 500,000 subsidized housing units in fiscal year 1980.

I share your view that the Department of Housing and Urban Development's subsidized housing programs play a critical role in meeting the needs of low- and moderate-income individuals and in producing jobs by stimulating the multifamily housing sector. While no final decisions on the Department's 1980 budget have been made, the new budget will reflect a level of subsidized housing assistance which is consistent both with our national housing objectives and with the need for fiscal restraint to reduce inflation.

As you know, last June the Administration authorized financial institutions to offer six-month money market certificates indexed to Treasury bill rates, and there is general agreement that these certificates have thus far been successful in averting the mortgage credit availability problems which have historically accompanied rising interest rates. We are continuing to monitor closely the outlook for mortgage credit and housing starts. I am keenly aware of the role that subsidized housing plays in meeting this nation's housing production needs.

Sincerely,

Jimmy Carter

Mr. President:

The AFL-CIO is deeply concerned with recent reports that the Office of Management and Budget has set a ceiling on HUD's fiscal year 1980 budget that has in turn caused the Agency to submit a reduced low-income rental housing budget request of 290,000 units. This is a significant cut from this year's 333,000 unit level, and even that number has been insufficient to meet the basic shelter needs of low- and moderate-income families. Additionally, the critical shortage of housing for low- and moderate-income people is inflationary since it bids up the price for the limited number of available housing units.

Cutting back on housing for the poor as a means of reducing the HUD budget places a heavy burden on those least able to afford it. Such an action will also reduce the number of construction and permanent jobs. We are convinced that this is not the way to balance the budget.

The current prime rate of 10-3/4 percent virtually assures that mortgage rates will move higher and there is a growing consensus among housing analysts that there will be a significant decline in housing construction during fiscal years 1979-80.

We are concerned that the imposed restriction on HUD's fiscal year 1980 budget, combined with a credit-related cyclical decline in non-subsidized housing, could create a new economic recession accompanied by continuing inflation in housing generated by a short supply.
America urgently needs a substantial increase in subsidized housing construction to help house low- and moderate-income families and to counteract the adverse economic effects of the expected decline in non-subsidized housing production. For all of these reasons, the AFL-CIO urges the Administration to support new budgetary authorization for fiscal year 1980 that will generate at least 500,000 additional subsidized housing units.

Sincerely yours,

[Signature]

COMMEMORATION OF 30TH ANNIVERSARY
OF ADOPTION OF UNIVERSAL
DECLARATION OF HUMAN RIGHTS

Wednesday, December 6, 1978
12 noon - 12:15 p.m.
The East Room

FROM: Zbigniew Brzezinski
Anne Wexler

I. PURPOSE

To commemorate an important United Nations anniversary; to reaffirm your commitment to human rights; and to strengthen your relationships with human rights, civil rights, church, labor, and other liberal groups, as well as with Eastern European ethnic groups.

II. BACKGROUND, PARTICIPANTS, AND PRESS PLAN

A. Background

1. On December 10, 1948, the United Nations General Assembly adopted the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The Declaration was the work of a U.N. Commission chaired by Eleanor Roosevelt. On this, the thirtieth anniversary of the adoption of the Declaration, the U.N. will be holding special commemorative ceremonies.

2. The United States commemoration was initially proposed to the White House by the State Department. A briefing format was decided upon as the best way to touch key political bases while commemorating a significant event. Because of scheduling conflicts, the briefing will occur a few days before December 10, the date that you have proclaimed as Human Rights Day (proclamation attached).
3. The guests will arrive at 10:30 a.m. for a coffee-and-cake reception. At 11:05 a.m., Cy Vance will make introductory remarks. He will be followed by Anne, who will make general comments; Zbig, who will discuss human rights policy in the context of overall foreign policy; and Pat Derian, who will make additional comments and take questions. You will arrive at the end of the question-and-answer period. (See attached agenda.)

B. Participants: About 300 persons from throughout the nation are expected to attend. The groups represented include the following:

(1) Groups concerned specifically with human rights issues (e.g., Amnesty International, International League for Human Rights);

(2) Groups with an international orientation (e.g., United Nations Association);

(3) Legal groups with an interest in human rights issues (e.g., ACLU, ABA Section on Individual Rights);

(4) Religious groups, with invitations sent to the people and offices most concerned about human rights, hunger, and overseas missions;

(5) Ethnic groups concerned about the fate of the peoples of Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union;

(6) Civil rights and black groups;

(7) Hispanic groups;

(8) Jewish groups;

(9) Labor groups;

(10) Local and county officials;

(11) Senators and Congressmen; and

(12) State Department personnel involved in human rights activities.
A partial list of expected attendees is attached. After the guests arrive, we will compile for your use a list of those in attendance of whom you may wish to take special note in your remarks.

C. Press Plan

White House Photo, Press Pool and T.V. coverage of your speech in full.

In addition, about 25 reports will remain in the room for the entire briefing. They are principally individuals who cover human rights issues on a regular basis.

We will also pipe the event into the White House Press Room.

III. TALKING POINTS

A text prepared by the speechwriters has been submitted separately.

BILL OF RIGHTS DAY

HUMAN RIGHTS DAY AND WEEK, 1978

- - - - - - - - - - - - - -

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

A PROCLAMATION

Two great events in the history of human liberty will be commemorated in December: the ratification, on December 15, 1791, of the Bill of Rights of the Constitution of the United States, and the adoption, on December 10, 1948, of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights by the United Nations General Assembly.

The anniversary of the Bill of Rights reminds us that our Nation is a continuing experiment in human freedom. Because of the Bill of Rights, we have been able to weather 187 years of tumultuous social and technological change without losing our fundamental liberties. Indeed, those liberties have actually expanded in scope, and have grown to encompass a steadily larger proportion of our people. We can be proud of what we have achieved. But we cannot be complacent, for too many Americans are still denied a fair opportunity to enjoy the rights and rewards of our society. That is why Bill of Rights Day should be a day of rededication as well as of commemoration.

This year, we mark the 30th anniversary of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

The Declaration is the cornerstone of a developing international consensus on human rights. It is also the authoritative statement of the meaning of the United Nations Charter, through which member nations undertake to promote, respect and observe human rights and fundamental freedoms for all, without discrimination. A long and difficult road must be travelled before the reality of human rights in the world matches the words of the Declaration. The Declaration will light that road and give strength to all who follow it.

The Universal Declaration is the heart of a body of important United Nations human rights documents: the Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination, the Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, and the Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights. The United States signed the Genocide Convention in 1948 and the Racial Discrimination Convention in 1966. I signed the other two Covenants on October 4, 1977. I hope that the United States Senate will soon approve the Genocide Convention at last, and will undertake early hearings to permit our Nation's adherence to the three remaining instruments. There could be no more appropriate gesture to mark the anniversary of the Universal Declaration.
I also signed the American Convention on Human Rights on June 1, 1977. I am proud that since then, eleven nations of the Americas have ratified it, thus bringing it into force.

The great and noble struggle to realize the rights of all men and women goes on. In the face of injustice and oppression, human beings continue to sacrifice and strive for justice and for human dignity.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, JIMMY CARTER, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim December 10, 1978, as Human Rights Day and December 15, 1978, as Bill of Rights Day, and call on all Americans to observe Human Rights Week beginning December 10, 1978. Let us reaffirm our dedication to the promise of this Nation for all citizens. And let us renew our efforts as members of the world community on behalf of the human rights of all people everywhere.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this twenty-eighth day of November, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy-eight, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and third.

JIMMY CARTER

MEMORANDUM FOR: THE PRESIDENT
FROM: STU EIZENSTAT
SUBJECT: Veterans Preference Case

I recommend that a statement be issued in your name clearly stating your position on veterans preference -- that you favor a change in the Federal law along the lines that we proposed last year. Such a statement will be helpful in allaying the concerns of the women's groups which are now so upset about the brief filed by the Justice Department. It will also help to clarify your position, in light of the seemingly contradictory action taken by Justice.

However, I do not recommend that we ask Justice to withdraw the brief:

-- the statement issued in your name will clearly indicate your position and distance you somewhat from the Justice Department brief;

-- to withdraw the brief at this point will produce stories of disarray and disharmony in the White House/Justice Department relationship. While some of those stories will be written in any event, an action as forceful as the required withdrawing of a brief will only exacerbate the tendency by the press to separate the White House from the Justice Department;

-- the forced withdrawal of a brief will clearly embarrass the Solicitor General before the court, and he will no doubt feel required to apologize publicly to the court for White House interference. (He did that with the Bakke case.) I do not know whether he would feel that his resignation would be required as well, but that is a possibility that should at least be taken into account;
-- The Senate and House Veterans Committees are certain to seek testimony from the Justice Department and perhaps the White House on why the brief was withdrawn. Those hearings will raise executive privilege questions which we probably do not want raised at this time. In addition, they will raise the question of political interference by the White House in Justice Department matters. That, of course, will produce a spate of stories linking our forced withdrawal of the brief with the White House action in the ITT case in the Nixon Administration.

In sum, while I do not think the brief should have been filed, at this point I think we can make amends with the women's groups by issuing a statement and can avoid an embarrassing situation for the court and the Congress if we leave the brief in its present state.
MEMORANDUM TO: The President

FROM: The Attorney General

SUBJECT: Massachusetts Veterans Preference Case
(Personnel Administrator of Massachusetts v. Feeney)

This case presents the tension between war veterans and women in the employment area. I attach a memorandum on the case prepared for me by Phil Jordan.

On October 11 the Solicitor General's office became aware of the case and shortly thereafter asked potentially interested agencies for views on whether a brief should be filed. By November 6, the EEOC and the Civil Service Commission had advised that they considered the U.S. interest insufficient to justify filing. The Veterans Administration urged a brief in favor of the preference, and the Labor Department urged a brief for the women. On November 28, the Solicitor General's office circulated to these agencies a draft brief defending the preference. At a meeting on November 30 (last Thursday) with representatives of the agencies, the Solicitor General decided to file the brief and announced that decision. On Friday and through the weekend, the Solicitor General worked with the agencies and Bob Lipshutz to modify the brief.

The decision of the lower federal court (a 2-1 decision) has been remanded once by the Supreme Court for reconsideration in light of an intervening Supreme Court decision. I would expect a reversal by the Supreme Court on settled legal principles—even without any word from us. There was arguably a need for the amicus brief to protect the interests of the United States in having preference statutes for veterans. The point was to save them from constitutional attack but to leave them subject to statutory reform such as you have suggested. I attach two excerpts from the brief which make your position clear.
Briefs, including amicus briefs, are routinely filed by the Office of the Solicitor General. Notice is given to agencies as agency interest may appear. Here my lawyers focused on the law question and did not appreciate the tension and inherent political problem in the veterans-women context.

I learned of this problem yesterday morning. The brief had been modified to reflect your policy position but the decision had been made to file. From that point on it was and is a no win situation.

The brief is moderate in tone and cannot be faulted. The fault lies in having filed a brief at all.

I have offered to meet with the interested women's groups, and Pat Wald and Barbara Babcock are trying to arrange this.

In my judgment you would be well advised to say that (1) you do not understand the necessity for the Justice Department to have entered a case involving a Massachusetts statute, particularly given the range of important matters already assigned to the Department; (2) you have not read the brief; but (3) the Attorney General has advised that it in no way conflicts with your policy to reform veterans' preferences in employment.

I strongly urge that you not direct that the brief be withdrawn. This will simply compound the error already made. A gesture for women will be the opposite for veterans and their sympathizers.
The Massachusetts preference at issue here is an 'absolute' preference. The federal preference has never applied in such an absolute way to such a large proportion of public employees as does that of Massachusetts. Moreover, President Carter has asked Congress to alter the federal veterans' employment preference because, among other things, it unduly interferes with employment opportunities for women and with management flexibility. The President's proposed changes would reduce the duration of the federal preference and the amount of the preference in several ways." */ pp. 1-2

"The President's original proposal would have made the preference available to veterans for only 10 years after their separation from the military (three years in the case of retired members of the armed forces) or until appointment to a permanent civil service position, whichever came first. Veterans' retention rights in the case of a reduction in force would have been limited to a period of three years following the veteran's appointment to a civil service position. The proposal would have eliminated veterans' preference for retired military officers with the rank of major or above, and limited its availability for other retired military personnel. See H.R. 11280, 95th Cong., 2d Sess. §§ 304, 305." Fn. p. 2
MEMORANDUM TO: The Attorney General

FROM: J. Phillip Jordan, Special Assistant to the Attorney General

SUBJECT: Massachusetts Veterans Preference Case
(Personnel Administrator of Massachusetts v. Feeney)

The Massachusetts Civil Service statutes afford a qualified veteran an absolute employment preference over all non-veterans regardless of relative test scores. The lower court held that the preference unconstitutionally discriminated against women. First, it observed that 98% of all veterans are men, so that a preference disproportionately harmed women. Second, it concluded that the state had "intended" to harm women because it must have known that such harm would be the "natural, foreseeable and inevitable effect" of the preference.

The Solicitor General's brief identifies specific interests of the United States implicated by the lower court decision and sought to be protected through amicus participation in the Supreme Court. First, certain portions of the Federal Civil Service law create the same absolute preference as the Massachusetts statute: for instance, the absolute preference for disabled veterans in non-scientific, non-professional positions at GS-9 and above. Second, the United States has an interest in defending those portions of the current and Administration-proposed veterans' preference which, although different from the absolute preference of the Massachusetts statute, nevertheless could be brought into question by the lower court decision because of their clear adverse impact on women. Third, the United States has an interest in articulating the considerations which support the constitutionality of veterans' employment preferences and veterans' benefits in general (e.g., hospital benefits, loan guarantees) against claims of discrimination toward identifiable groups. And finally, the United States has an interest in defending the prerogative of the Executive and Legislative Branches to adopt various preferences and benefit schemes without their being subject to constitutional invalidation due to adverse impact on identifiable groups.
On the basis of recent Supreme Court decisions, the brief argues that a statute neutral on its face with respect to sex does not violate the Constitution, despite its disproportionate effect on one sex, unless a "discriminatory intent" was a "motivating factor" in the enactment of the statute. The brief contends that the lower court erred in finding such a discriminatory "intent" from the fact of a natural, foreseeable and inevitable adverse effect on women. The "intent" of the Massachusetts veterans' preference was to benefit veterans, not to harm women. The harm to women was an incidental effect of the statutory scheme, and such incidental effects do not amount to discriminatory intent.

Re: Massachusetts Veterans' Preference Case

We now have telegrams from the following in opposition to the filing of a brief:
- Bella Abzug and Carmen Votaw, National Advisory Committee
- Phyllis Segal, NOW Legal and Education Fund
- Geraldine Edison, Business & Professional Women
- Chris Candela, WEAL
- Judith Lightman, Women's Legal Defense Fund
- Millie Jeffrey - NWPC
- Mayor and City Council, Minneapolis
- Several individuals

I have had phone calls or conversations with the following in opposition to the filing of a brief:

Ellen Feingold, Director of Civil Rights, DOT
Alexis Herman, Director, Women's Bureau, DOL
Lynne Finney, Director, Office of Industry Development, Federal Home Loan Bank Board
Allie B. Latimer, General Counsel, GSA
Yvonne T. Dixon, NLRB
Several others at Indepartmental Task Force on Women

The memo yesterday cited all the White House and other administration appointees previously opposed to filing a brief.

I would urge once again that the required copies of the brief not be submitted to the Court. To do otherwise, is to invite great agitation and indignation (and just before Memphis, at that).
MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: BOB LIPSHUTZ

RE: Veterans' Preference Case

Around noon yesterday, the Solicitor General's office "logged" with the Supreme Court a typewritten "amicus curiae" brief in Massachusetts v. Feeney, the veterans' preference case. This "logging" does not represent a formal filing of a brief.

According to the Supreme Court rules, a brief is "filed" with the Court when 40 printed copies are delivered. It is only then that the brief will be "docketed" and, therefore, formally filed. Furthermore, even if the brief had been formally filed and docketed, the Justice Department could formally ask that it be withdrawn.

It would be a very public gesture not to formally file a brief since a copy of the brief is already in the hands of the Supreme Court and the counsels in the case. However, it is already public knowledge that there have been extensive discussions between the White House and the Justice Department and disagreements on this matter.

If the brief is not filed, some parties may call it political interference on the part of the White House. On the other hand, if it is filed, it now may appear that the White House concurred in the judgement of the Justice Department.

I have been in communication with the Attorney General concerning this matter since our discussion in your office late yesterday morning. He advises that the printed copies of the brief will not be ready until Thursday and that he will have a memorandum on your desk this afternoon concerning the matter.
You will recall that:

1. This is a civil, not a criminal case.
2. It is a case involving a state, not federal, statute.
3. The United States is not a party to the suit.
4. The Supreme Court did not request the United States to file an "amicus" brief but it would be purely voluntary on the federal government's part.

Even though the Justice Department has been cooperative in redrafting its original brief, so as to come closer to expressing your policy in its arguments, I recommend that you request the Attorney General not to formally file the "amicus" brief or to withdraw it, as the case may be.

I recognize that such action will probably receive adverse reaction from veterans groups.

However, if after reviewing the Attorney General's memorandum, you should decide not to so request the Attorney General to withdraw the brief, I recommend that you issue a written statement reaffirming your own policy relative to the veterans preference question.

Approve request to Attorney General to withdraw brief

Do not approve such request

(If you do not approve, issue statement reaffirming policy)

Do not issue statement

ACTION

MEMORANDUM FOR: THE PRESIDENT

FROM: JAMES T. McINTYRE, JR.
FRANK MOORE

SUBJECT: White House Budget Task Force

Described below is our revised proposal for creating a budget task force to begin in January. This version reflects comments we have received from White House staff, OMB policy and career staff, and key Congressional sources.

PROBLEM

When they work with the Congress to explain your budget, Executive departments and agencies generally concentrate on securing approval of their total budget request. Consequently, when word goes back to the departments of a preliminary subcommittee mark, most emphasis is placed on restoring cuts, with only a token effort at reducing congressional add-ons. This year, some departments have initiated specific attempts to reduce budget add-ons, but these campaigns have been too weak and too late in the process in most instances. Inherently, the departments become advocates for their individual programs and lose sight of overall Administration budget objectives. Agency cooperation in the two major veto fights was a notable exception.

The FY 1980 budget, as currently envisioned, is going to be the most constrained budget in years. The special interest groups are launching an aggressive campaign to defeat your proposals, even prior to the release of the 1980 budget documents. Thus, the traditional problems of enacting the budget will be increased substantially.

White House Congressional Liaison cannot devote sufficient amounts of time to enacting the budget, since they are spread thin across all domestic and international issues, many with slight budgetary impact. OMB has only two full-time Congressional relations staff who work on the budget, and these people also have other responsibilities. Thus, we are short of resources to deal aggressively with Congress on the FY 1980 budget.
PROPOSED SOLUTION

As proposed for other priority legislative issues, we recommend creation of a White House budget task force to devise strategies for passing your budget and to make specific assignments to the participants. This group, which would be chaired by Hubert Harris of OMB, would be comprised of OMB and White House Congressional liaison staffs, including temporary budget liaison people (see below) and, as appropriate, representatives of DPS, agency CL staffs, and the Wexler, Jordan, Rafshoon, and Powell staffs. The task force would draw on OMB's policy and technical expertise on budget matters and could call upon any EOP office whose resources would contribute to enactment of the budget.

The budget task force will coordinate communications with Congress on the budget and will also coordinate public activities to support our efforts on the Hill. It will issue a consistent Administration position on key budget issues and will ensure that Members and staff are not inundated with multiple, inconsistent contacts.

The task force will consider the President's budget as given. Any suggested modifications of budget policy must be approved by Jim through normal OMB channels. All decisions of the task force regarding budget strategy would be subject to review by both of us.

In order to meet the goals of the budget task force, we recommend that five people be selected by us for temporary employment on a consultant or detail basis for the period from January through the end of the first session. These would include approximately three professionals, one mid-level, and one secretary. For official purposes, these people would be assigned to Frank's staff. This would take advantage of the prestige of the White House which should be helpful on the Hill.

The new staff will work with agency Congressional relations staffs, as well as both of our permanent staffs, to be sure that the spending levels and priorities communicated to the Hill follow Presidential decisions and general Administration policy. They would work with the Members and key staff of the Appropriations, Budget, and selected other committees of both Houses. The day-to-day work of these people would be assigned by the budget strategy group.

DECISION

You should be aware that some of the Cabinet may oppose this overall plan, since it will mean more active White House participation in the enactment of their budgets. Nevertheless, we believe that the proposal is justified, based on our experience in monitoring department actions (and inactions) in support of your budget over the last two years.
Given the priority of the anti-inflation effort and the importance of holding down excessive spending to achieve its goals, we recommend that you approve the task force proposal so we can effectively counter special interest pressures to increase the budget and to rearrange your budget priorities.

(✓) Agree

(☐) Disagree

(☐) Other:

I prefer that you use assigned personnel rather than adding five temporary employees for a year.
