In ’41 the Japanese took our troops on Guam. Alive or dead — we didn’t know. One was my Uncle Tom.

He was the Navy boxing champ, my hero with his crown. Now with him gone, his family moved down to our Georgia town.

My grandma and my aunts felt Tom was not his wife’s but theirs. She could feel the coolness but stayed on to join their prayers.

What bound them all together was the hope and faith and dread. When two years passed, the dispatch came: my Uncle Tom was dead.

His wife and kids moved back out West to start their lives again, And after Tom was gone three years she wed a family friend.

The end of war brought startling news: Tom Gordy was alive. Four years he had been digging coal deep in a mountainside.

The women took the feeble Tom and smothered him with care. He never would tell anyone what happened over there.

Tom Gordy soon regained some strength and craved a normal life, But mother and sisters told him lies about his absent wife.

Betraying him. Tom wanted her, but couldn’t figure how To bring her back or overcome her second marriage vow.

He got four years’ back pay and made Commander, U.S.N. It didn’t take him long to find a woman’s love again.

Tom closed the past except when his three children came to stay; When I would mention his first wife he’d always turn away.

Once my submarine tied up where she lived with her kin. I went to visit them, afraid They wouldn’t let me in.

But all the folks they knew were called when I first gave my name; All night we danced and sang because at least Tom’s nephew came.
