While we continue to dearly miss hosting student and teacher groups in our museum, the Carter Library will continue to remotely engage our education stakeholders as effectively as possible.

Please continue to take advantage of our growing collection of distance learning tools including Student Programs, Teacher Resources, and Professional Development. We also have additional AV resources for students available on the Carter Library YouTube Channel. Stay safe and have a great school year!

National History Day 2022

To kick off National History Day and the 2021-2022 school year, the Carter and Clinton Presidential Libraries will be teaming up on Thursday, September 9, 2021, 5-7pm EST, to present Carter & Clinton: Commonalities & Contrasts. This workshop for educators will be highlighting the connections between these southern governors-turned presidents and their viability for students' consideration for NHD entries for this year's theme, Debate & Diplomacy in History: Successes, Failures, Consequences. This collaborative program will help students mitigate the challenges of limited onsite research and highlight the vast array of digital primary research resources available from the Presidential Libraries and the National Archives. To attend, complete the Online Registration Form. For more information on this year's contest, visit the official website of National History Day.

Upcoming Education Programs
2021-2022 School Year Program Offerings

The Jimmy Carter Presidential Library offers a myriad of civics-based distance learning programs that meet the curricular needs of students and provide relevant professional development for teachers. A current list of student programs, professional development offerings, and teacher resources can be accessed on the Carter Library website.

Senior Community Distance Learning

Do you organize and provide programming for a senior citizen institution or civic organization? If so, Fall is fast approaching and the time to reserve a presentation from the Carter Presidential Library is now! The Carter Library is committed to continue providing quality programming to Senior Community groups and organizations during the Covid-19 pandemic. Our Education staff offers flexibility to deliver distance learning programming on a variety of topics related to the Carter Presidency, American Civics and Government, and the Mission, Vision and Values of the National Archives and Records Administration.

All programming is free of charge, with a minimum of 10 participants required for consideration. Requestor also agrees to host programming on a distance learning platform approved by their organization (Carter Library staff will present as co-host).
